

MVA hot potato gets tossed to new council

by MARTHA PERKINS
Editor

Although the outgoing county council is leaving the decision of whether to implement market value re-assessment to the newly elected reeves and deputy-reeves, councillors gave a firm warning that the issue cannot be avoided much longer.

"This council has neglected its duty for a whole year," said returning Snowdon reeve, George Simmons, who has announced his candidacy for the warden's position. "On a county level we need to think about what's best for the county and maybe the new council will take it seriously."

"How do you get townships to get on with it," asked Bob McCausland, reeve of Glamorgan Township, which went ahead with MVR. McCausland lost his bid to continue as reeve, partly because of cottagers' anger that they were not sufficiently notified about the change.

"Somewhere along the line we have to work as a county," McCausland said.

Last December, the assessment office presented a detailed study on the impact of MVR on county properties. A few months later, county council deferred its decision on whether to implement MVR.

With a HO HO HO and a wave of his hand, Santa Claus took a majestic ride down Haliburton's main street on Saturday morning. The white-bearded visitor from the North Pole was last in a long line of floats taking part in the exciting parade. There are more pictures of the floats on pages 15 and 16.

PineStone closes for winter

by MARK PUBLICOVER
Staff Reporter

The tattered tourism industry has forced the PineStone Inn to close its doors for the winter season, putting dozens of workers out in the cold.

"We've expanded quite a bit and now need a larger level of business to break even," manager D'Arcy McKittrick told The Echo Friday. "But the tourism just isn't there now and so we'll close until May 1 and focus on the May to October season."

County's largest resort strapped for cash

The resort closed on Sunday and McKittrick said it will honor some day events already booked. But it will be forced to find other venues for larger bookings including New Year's Eve and Christmas parties.

He said between 40 and 50 employees were told Friday that they would be laid off immediately and recalled in March or April to get ready for the reopening.

PineStone had already temporarily laid off about 30 people after the summer season, making it one of the major employers in the area.

"I don't know what to think right now," said laid off sous chef Brad Archer. "I'm just confused and worried now about paying my mortgage. I was on holidays and just found out (Sunday night) and I'm working on my resume right now."

An employee for three years, Archer has three children, including one eight months old.

Guest Relations Manager Robert Lams said he wasn't really surprised at the news of his lay-off.

"The economy is bad and last winter was not very good for us, so I can understand why they have to shut down this year," he said Sunday night. "Being in management, I was more or less aware of the situation and I'd like to be back in the spring."

Haliburton County Employment Services Centre Senior Project Manager Jane Selbie said those who apply for unemployment insurance will have to wait up to eight weeks to receive any benefits. Public Relations Officer Sue Cote of the Peterborough Employment and Immigration office will be at the Centre today to assist those laid-off in submitting claims.

McKittrick said five people will be kept on to maintain the facilities, obtain bookings for May and help develop a long-term strategy.

"We're not bankrupt and we have to develop a strategy to ensure that doesn't happen," he said.

Maple Sands Resort owner Curtis Eastmure said he was "flabbergasted" at PineStone's decision to close for so long.

"I could see shutting down partially after the Christmas season but a total shutdown like this is a big surprise," he said. "The week between Christmas and New Year's is a very busy time for me."

He said the shutdown will cause "considerable loss" to the community as he expects some tourists to go to other areas of the province as a result.

"If the citizens don't realize the spin-offs of the tourism industry now," he said, "they will when they see a hundred people walking down Main Street looking for jobs."

Barbara Dawson's efforts are rewarded by Chamber

by MARK PUBLICOVER
Staff Reporter

Barb Dawson was named Highlander of the Year at the Haliburton Highlands Chamber of Commerce Annual Meeting last Wednesday at the Bonnie View Inn.

"She made believers of us all that we can get our chronic-care hospital," Chamber Treasurer Shawn Hagerman said in introducing her. "She has shown us that one person can make a difference and has shared the good wherever she has found it and we are all richer for it."

The Chamber elected its board of directors for the coming year, presented the auditor's report and also presented the Haliburton Forest and Wildlife Reserve with the Business Achievement Award at the meeting, which was held as a wine and cheese party instead of the usual dinner to reduce costs.

"This has been a year of decision-making for members both for the Chamber and for their own businesses," President Lyn Stevens told the nearly 100 members who attended. "We have a tough job to do because we are small Chamber but have an entire county to promote."

After being nominated from the floor, Haliburton Real Estate Board President Sharon Lynch was voted to sit on the Board of Directors to provide representation for the real estate sector. She will replace Waverley Brook Farm owner Godfrey Tyler, who was the odd man out after Lynch became the thirteenth candidate for the 12 board seats. Those elected are Dennis Casey, Curtis Eastmure, Ann Barker, Rhonda Elstone, Derek Lowry, Ann Martino, John Beachli, Brian Moore, Dorothy MacKenzie-Payne, Andy Salvatori and Brian Dean.

"I was completely shocked," Dawson said during an interview about winning the Highlander of the Year Award for her work chairing the fundraising committee to build the County's 18-bed chronic care hospital.

The committee raised $440,000 in less than a year to get the hospital proposal off the ground but Dawson says there is still a long way to go. A total of $4.2-million is needed for the 18 beds but MPP Dennis Drainville recently announced a provincial grant of only $2.3-million for up to three capital projects.

"I have some concerns as to how to reconcile those two figures," Dawson said. "It will take time but the needs of the community will prevail."

"The community is very interested in those beds," she said, refusing to take any credit for the success of her efforts. "Raising the money was very much a community thing and we had a marvelous committee. Many of the people who were involved in the 1971 expansion were also involved again this time around."

Principals give mixed grades to junior high

by MARK PUBLICOVER
Staff Reporter

The idea of a junior high school is new to Haliburton County, but it's not new to other school boards around the province.

After considering four options to address its growing accommodation problem, the Haliburton school board has proposed that a school be established for Grades 7 to 9, an idea some say is educationally unsound.

"Sometimes it is necessary to not do what's in the best interests of the students because of economics and other reasons," said Gloria Brooks, an education officer with the Ontario Ministry of Education.

"Most of the boards in the province are now phasing out Grade 7 to 9 schools in favor of Grade 6 to 8 'middle' schools because it is believed that this will make the transition to secondary school easier."

Grades 7 to 9, known as the transition years, have been the focus of much debate in the past four years as the Ministry has been updating and improving its policies.

A draft document outlining the Ministry's new direction isn't due until next Spring, but some schools have already begun to implement one new policy, known as de-streaming. In an effort to prepare students better for secondary school, the Ministry suggests eliminating advanced and basic levels in Grade 9 and replacing them with a core curriculum for all students.

As a result, Grade 9 will become more like Grade 8 which will facilitate an easier transition into secondary school.

DOING THE HONOURS: Amid smiles and the babble of children playing, young Amy Nicholls cuts the ribbon on Tuesday morning to officially open the new Haliburton location for CHACE's Resource Centre. Helping her is Cheryl Cathcart, co-chairperson of CHACE's board of directors. Now no-one has to drive up Dover's Hill.

CHACE opens new centre

by MARTHA PERKINS
Editor

From teen dance hall to rumpus room for tots, the lower level of the Halco Plaza is certainly never dull.

Amid the babble of dozens of playing children, on Tuesday morning the Haliburton CHACE Resource Centre officially welcomed everyone to its new location. What was once the Surf Shack has been transformed into a place where children can play with new friends while parents and caregivers also benefit from being around others with similar interests and concerns.

"This centre was jet black and navy blue so Alan Upton, our maintenance supervisor, really did some miracles," said executive director Sue Valm, marvelling at the bright and sunny whiteness of the large centre.

There were other people to thank. "This is the result of many people's efforts," Valm said, acknowledging those who carried on with the dream of the founding mothers. "It's easy to forget the behind the scenes stuff and without our volunteers, we wouldn't be here."

Valm thanked landlord Lon

Duncombe for facilitating the move from the top of Dover's Hill, Gary Burch for the renovations and Grant Rae for the carpentry. "We're proud to serve you in such a wonderful centre."

The staff was given a floral arrangement with a prancing merri-go-round horse, which supervisor Katherine Hodgson-McMahon thought was very appropriate. "We feel we go round and round so the merri-go-round is our theme today," she laughed.

Alice Dana congratulated the staff on behalf of Dennis Drainville, saying the MPP would far more enjoy being around the happy children than sitting in Queen's Park. "We really would like to support what's happening at the centre," the riding assistant said.

The founding mothers, who recognized a need in the community and watched their efforts grow into a thriving service, were honoured by Cheryl Cathcart, vice-chairperson of the board of directors.

"I'd like to thank them for their perseverance, dedication and vision of a children's place where opportunities are endless and the learning, both for parents, caregivers, adults and children, is a joy."

"It's a tribute to have you back in the town," said outgoing reeve Bill Davis as he cut the cake. "I realize how effective and how important the centre is in the community."

The CHACE Resource Centre is in the southeastern lower half of Halco Plaza off Maple Street in Haliburton Village.

Junior high school debate has no failproof answers

policy in effect, a Grade 7 to 9 school will make the transition to secondary school more difficult," Broks said. "It will cause a sort of double shock to the student because when they go to secondary school, they will have to adjust both to a new school and they will have to choose their courses for the first time."

On the other hand, she said, the transition from a Grade 6 to 8 middle school to a Grade 9 to OAC school would be made easier with the new de-streaming policy because students don't have to adjust to two things at once.

Cardiff Trustee Lloyd Griffiths, a former principal of kindergarten to Grade 6 schools that fed 'junior highs,' said the issue is not black and white.

"You'll find as many people in favour of grouping Grades 7 to 9 as you will against it," he said. "Ideally, I am against it because putting kids together at those ages is just asking for trouble."

"I've seen it in action and to me, it seems that grouping these grades together compounds any problems that arise. This is something we have to really think about."

While many educators agree with Broks and Griffiths, others agree with local director of education Brad Saunders: grouping Grades 7 to 9 together will work with the proper teachers and administration.

"There are pros and cons, but I'm not convinced that grouping them together will be a problem," said Norm Damaren, a superintendent with the Waterloo Region Catholic School Board who recently served a year as a policy coordinator with the Ministry.

"It will depend on the school, how the board operates it and how it structures it," he said. "It's an issue that must be carefully considered and will provide an opportunity to take a good, hard look at how the structure is used to meet the needs of the kids."

Elaine Lester is the principal of Fisherville Junior High School in North York and she says there is no difference between Grade 6 to 8 schools and 7 to 9 schools.

"We have both here in North York and I am convinced that both are effective in preparing students for high school," she said. "It depends on the teachers, the administration and the philosophy they have."

Tweed Senior Elementary School Principal Barry Norton agrees.

He said his school, for Grades 4 to 8, pays a lot of attention to making the transition to high school as easy as possible.

"I think we're able to prepare our students well for high school," he said. "I can see some advantages with having a 7 to 9 school and I can see some disadvantages as well. I'm no stranger to accommodation problems and I know you have to work with what you have to find a solution."

"If you have the right people working in the right situation — it'll work out."

TSW welcomes public comment

by MARK PUBLICOVER
Staff Reporter

Environment Canada will give Haliburton-area cottagers and residents a chance to express their concerns about the operation of the Trent-Severn Waterway.

Earlier this month, Waterway Superintendent John Lewis announced that the federal government will begin developing a Management Plan to guide the protection, management and use of the canal's resources into the next century.

"Haliburton County will of course continue serving as a watershed from a management standpoint," Lewis told The Echo. "It's a given that the waterway doesn't operate without water and this planning process will provide an opportunity for people to comment on the policy issues that go along with managing the waterway."

Environment Canada's Park Service regulates water levels and flow rates throughout the watershed area primarily to serve the needs of the Trent Waterway to the south. The resulting drawdowns, especially in lean years, create hazards to boating, threaten the viability of marinas and other businesses, threaten shoreline habitats and deny access to water-access only cottages.

Lewis said the plan will deal with the question of capacity in addition to shoreline development, wetland preservation and the future of the Waterway. A core planning team made up mostly of internal Environment Canada personnel will hold public forums and produce newsletters starting in the spring.

The Management Plan is expected to take two to three years to complete, Lewis said, to allow adequate time for research, consultation, review and approval.

Anyone wishing to receive information as the Management Plan proceeds can send their name and address to: Management Planning, Trent-Severn Waterway, Box 567, Peterborough, Ont. K9J 6Z6.

Davis justifies hiring of co-ordinator from within

by MARTHA PERKINS
Editor

County council was justified in hiring its Gypsy moth co-ordinator from within, the chairman of the county's forest health committee says, responding to an Echo editorial.

"Every year when it comes to mapping (which areas will be sprayed), we seem to lose our co-ordinator," Bill Davis said at Wednesday's county council meeting. With a November 30 deadline for applications for the spray program, it was imperative that a new co-ordinator be hired immediately after Len Munt's departure last month.

The Echo editorial said an argument could be made for hiring former roads department worker Andy Paul as a temporary measure, but once the deadline had passed, the ethical thing to do was put the job up for tender.

In an interview during a council break, Davis said "if (Andy Paul) can meet the criteria, he will likely be hired." At present, Paul is on a six-month probation, as are all new employees.

Davis had to be asked repeatedly about the principle of hiring someone in a closed process. "You could argue the principle," he conceded.

But he talked more on the conditions of Paul's employment. Last year, the county hired a co-ordinator on a contract basis. Within a month, the co-ordinator left for a salaried job. So council hired Munt on a salary. He too left for a better position in the Greater Toronto Area. When it came time to hire Paul, Davis said "it was my suggestion that the job should be put up on a contract basis because the job could become redundant when the Gypsy moth population subsides, but that's not likely in the future. Or the ministry funding could be pulled."

Indeed, in his report to council, Davis continually stressed that people weren't taking the Gypsy moth threat seriously enough.

"Whether people like to believe it or not, it is a serious problem and it's going to get worse before it gets better," Davis said. In 1990 there were 145,000 infested acres and by 1991 the affected acreage jumped to 347,000. Haliburton County has been most adversely affected at Gull Lake and up Highway 35 to Muskoka. The problem is becoming so severe, Americans are afraid it will pass back into their country at Lake Erie.

Davis and the county's chief executive officer, Gary McKnight, were recently at Gypsy moth conferences in Parry Sound and Raleigh, North Carolina, and the reeve said Americans criticized that "Ontario was taking the infestation far too lightly."

Sherborne et al Reeve Don Shortreed, who also spent many years on the forest health committee, agreed. "A lot of people don't believe we have a problem." Gypsy moths favourite food is trees under stress, and in the Highlands, that means shrub oak.

Everyone must start actively searching for and destroying — either manually or through the aerial spray program — Gypsy moth egg masses. "We have to have our trees for our tourists."

Shortreed notes that if a landowner has less than the required 10 acres for the provincial spray program, private spray companies operate out of the Muskoka airport.

Louise Craig of Hydro is on to a good idea

More businesses urged recycle their fine paper

by NANCY KUZMICH
Staff Reporter

During this time of environmental awareness, any new recycling idea is welcomed with open arms.

For the past four months, Louise Craig has been successfully recycling fine paper. Now the Ontario Hydro energy management representative wants more participants.

She's appealing to all Haliburton County businesses to join her "Paper Players" club where, for a small fee, all office stationery, including computer paper, will be recycled.

Some of the present members of this "club" include Ontario Hydro, the Ministry of Natural Resources, and the County and Board of Education offices.

Craig first got bitten by the conservation bug in July when she was astounded by the amount of paper thrown out daily by her Minden office. She had attended the University of Waterloo, where re-cycling was "a way of life". Along with Leonard Munt, who was then county waste management co-ordinator, she came up with the idea of a co-operative waste bin.

The bin rental charge, storage and paper pick-up is $190. The bin is kept at the MNR on Highway 35 because of its central location. Every one who paid the fee owns a key to the bin and those who can't afford to can deposit paper in the bin for a $1 charge.

Craig says the venture is too expensive with just the few members now involved. She's hoping that if enough businesses commit to the enterprise for the following year, she will be able to charge everyone individually, depending on the size of the company.

For more information, contact Louise Craig at 286-2031.

Social services likely to have $70,000 deficit

The county's social services department will likely have a deficit of $70,000 by year's end.

With two more months to go, the department only had $12,800 left of its $400,000 budget at the end of October. This would not be enough to cover the costs of a growing number of cases.

Part of the blame lies with the province's new Back on Track program, says the county's representative on the social services committee, Bern Berry. The program gives more benefits to recipients and is only one of the several changes made by the province since the county set its budget in March.

All other county departments seem to be on budget.

County buys parkland for $2

For the price of $2, county council bought about five acres of parkland from Anson, Hindon and Minden.

However, as part of the deal voted on at Wednesday's county council meeting, the county will "donate" $40,000 to develop parklands adjacent to the site of the new county office building.

Minden Reeve Bern Berry said he didn't realize the matter would be voted on so soon. He had asked the county's Chief Administrative Officer, Gary McKnight, to attend a municipal council meeting about the proposal. McKnight did not show up because he was at a Gypsy moth convention, and communication lines got crossed with the person who was supposed to represent him.

To ratify the land purchase, Minden council must vote on it at Thursday night's meeting.

County council's present location on Newcastle Street is growing too small for the various departments' needs. It had planned on moving to the Allsaw Flats, but Minden residents protested, saying that the county building should remain within the County Town.

County keeps eye on long-term strategies

Monmouth Reeve Keith Tallman says everyone should be paying close attention to the province's proposed strategies for long-term healthcare.

"The report is startling," he said, referring to Redirection of Long-Term Care and Support Services in Ontario. "If this happens I don't know what will happen to Haliburton County. . . Most of our chronic care beds will go to Hyland Crest if you read this report."

Hyland Crest is a senior citizens home owned and funded 20 percent by the county. If chronic care beds were built at a hospital, the province would fund 100 percent of the operating costs. If the beds go to a nursing home, the county will have to pick up 20 percent.

As well, Tallman warns against taking HomeCare away from the health unit. Not only is this a more efficient partnership, but the proposed 16-member board which will control HomeCare will have very little municipal representation.

There is a public open house about the province's plans on Monday, December 2 from 2 to 4 and 7 to 9 p.m. at Hyland Crest in Minden. "I urge everyone to attend," says Stanhope Reeve Harry Davis.

A Ministry of Health press release says the consultation paper "reflects the government's new directions for long-term care. Directed at minimizing the use of institutions and maximizing secure and stable home, family and community living, they include:

- an integrated approach to provincial management of all long-term care health and social services;

- a large expansion in funding for community support services

- better co-ordination of services re-alignment of funding policies to reduce regional disparities, and increased funding for supportive housing."

Clarification

The former manager of the Haliburton Highlands Chamber of Commerce was let go because the Chamber did not have enough money to pay her wages. The Echo regrets any other interpretation arising out of last week's story.

As well, in the letter to the editor from Charles Lutz, there was a typographical error in the fourth paragraph. The sentence should have read "Academic input from Trent Native Studies Department would show to our students how White settlers, having been granted land seized from the original occupants by a victorious imperial power, were assisted and aided by a forgiving, non-aggressive and generous local populace whose ancestors had come to this land 12,000 years ago from Siberia."

Constitutional reform is about many things.

But mostly it's about you.

As Canadians, we are now facing one of the most important challenges in our history. Proposals have been put forward by the Government of Canada to improve our Constitution. These proposals, for a more united and prosperous Canada in which all Canadians can feel at home, are currently being reviewed by a special parliamentary committee. They will also be considered by a series of conferences run by independent Canadian organizations.

Some of the proposals include:

- ♦ a Canada clause that speaks of our hopes and dreams as Canadians, our values, our diversity, our tolerance and our generosity of spirit

- ♦ recognizing the right of aboriginal peoples to govern themselves while being protected by Canadian law

- ♦ ensuring recognition of Quebec's distinctiveness and of minority language groups

- ♦ reforming the Senate to make it elected, effective and much more equitable than it is now

- ♦ strengthening Canada's economic union so Canadians can work and conduct business anywhere in the country

- ♦ guaranteeing property rights.

Councils must face tough MVA decision

which brings property values up to 1988 levels. Because shoreline properties have increased most in value, those owners would be paying a larger share of taxes. But MVR is also a fairer way to wards, Berry was the only person to vote against waiving the notice. "Pretty conclusive," noted Stanhope Reeve Harry Davis of the vote.

Then Puffer told councillors that in a telephone conversation with 'This council has neglected its duty for a whole year. Maybe the new council will take it seriously' distribute the tax load between municipalities.

George Simmons

Municipal councils were then supposed to ask the regional assessment officer, Ron Young, to attend public meetings about MVR. Only three municipalities, Snowdon, Glamorgan and Stanhope, did so. For MVR to be adopted county wide, county council has to vote in favour of it as well as six of the 10 municipal councils. Glamorgan and Bicroft are the only municipalities which have implemented MVR.

The deferral meant the assessment office would not release tax rolls until a yes or no decision was made. This would have delayed the mailing of tax bills and necessitated a re-calculation of tax bills halfway through the year.

Because the county learned of this after its last meeting in September, it could not put forward a notice of motion, telling councillors the issue would be discussed at the November meeting. But council could agree by resolution to waive the need for the notice of motion. Which is what Warden Carol Puffer asked councillors to do on Wednesday.

Anson, Hindon and Minden Reeve Bern Berry objected to waiving the notice of motion. He started by saying that if MVR were introduced, AHM would be short $31,000 in taxes. Instead of voting yes or no, Berry wanted council to defer the issue again. "I feel we should give the new council a chance to look at it and possibly implement it."

But Sherborne et al Reeve Don Shortreed noted that "the only way we can get into this discussion is by waiving the notice of motion." When voted upon shortly after-

Ron Young on Tuesday afternoon — Berry had phoned Young that morning — she was told council had a third option: it could ask the assessment to release the tax roll with updated figures.

"This has never been done before," Young said in a telephone interview after the meeting about why the third option was offered at the last moment.

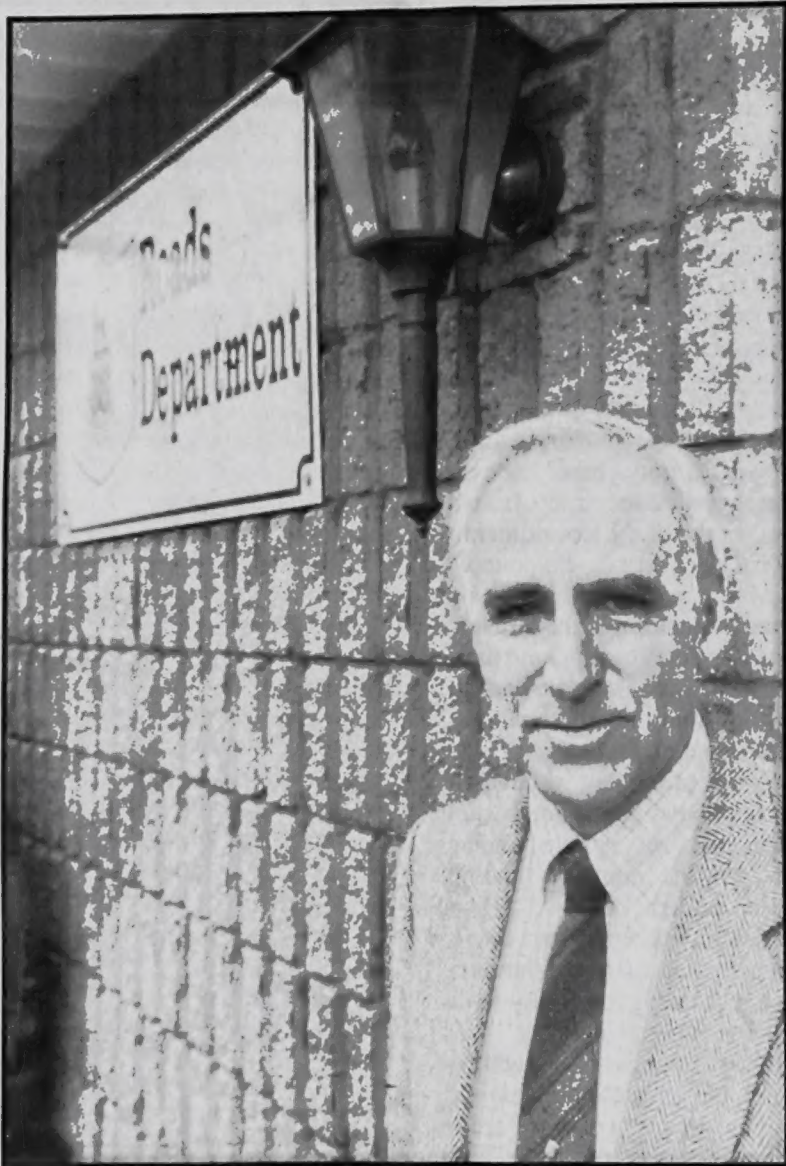

For those against MVR, Young notes that when the rolls are released, "there's no reassessment of property values. The only changes will be for people who bought property, put on additions or built new buildings."

This allows the new county council to spend the next year debating the issue using the 1991 mill rates. "It means I can do a lot more public education — they just have to invite me up," Young says.

"I would hope it's only a coincidence that it's raising its head now," Dysart et al Reeve Bill Davis said Wednesday. MVR was an election issue and "definitely played a very important role" in Glamorgan, where most of the council which implemented MVR was voted out. When new county councillors tackle the issue, "I hope they vote with their heads rather than their hearts. . . MVR has a long lasting effect on a magnitude of the people."

"The principle of deferring it is still very valid," said Dysart's deputy-reeve, Lloyd Leadbeater. "I think we might be making it more difficult for new councillors if we make a decision this late in the game."

County council voted in favour of asking the assessment office to release the tax rolls without a definite yes or no vote on MVR.

Dave Valentine has reached his 30-year goal

All roads lead engineer to Haliburton County

by MARTHA PERKINS
Editor

Dave Valentine has travelled a long way to finally reach his goal of living and working in Haliburton County.

As a civil engineering student at the University of Toronto in the late 1950s, Valentine went to the survey camp at the Frost Centre, just south of Dorset. His instructor asked him what he'd like to do when he earned his degree. Valentine said he'd like to work in Haliburton; the only problem was that without a county roads department yet, the county had no need for an engineer.

But it was more than that. Growing up in Norland, his father, William, had used their home as a base for his forays into the Highlands, where he was well-known as a stone mason. William was the craftsman of many major stone projects, including large fireplaces at many local resorts.

Thirty years later, Valentine finally has his wish: last month he started his job as the county's latest roads engineer. "It's been a long trip but I made it. . . I'm going to trace my father's footsteps all over the county."

Not only the area attracted him to the job. After 23 years of teaching surveying at Sir Sandford Fleming College, he was ready to be back to hands-on business.

"A county engineer's job has a terrific amount of variety," he says, comparing it to the "deadliness" of teaching the same subject year after year. "No two days are the same. I could be negotiating proposals, making a budget, deciding how big a culvert should be — it covers everything from dirt to computers. It's creative, too. You're actually

Irondale post office has uncertain future

by MARTHA PERKINS
Editor

Residents in Irondale are getting worried about how they'll receive their mail when the post office leaves its present location on Saturday.

The post office is in the Irondale store, owned by the Hancock family. As well as being postmistress, Clara Lindsay, along with her husband Robert have been running the store for the past seven years.

In August, the Hancocks gave the Lindsays notice to vacate the building by November 30. The Lindsays now want to put the post office in a trailer, but have yet to approach Snowdon council with a zoning application.

"In this case, the agreement is that the postmistress is to provide the space," says Laszlo Szabo, a Canada Post spokesman. "At this point there's a problem between the landlords and tenant which has nothing to do with Canada Post. I can't comment as to how it is resolved in a way we can provide uninterrupted service. I really don't want to speculate. But if there's no space for the post office it's difficult to have a post office."

A petition circulated among Irondale residents strongly endorses keeping the post office at the store, which is easily accessible. But Mr. Lindsay says people think the Lindsays are willingly leaving the store and don't understand they are being evicted.

"If we tried to move the post office, would the people come out en masse to try to stop us," he asks. "It is us being put out of the business. . . I think it's terrible, I think we're being shafted."

There is also a dispute over the terms of the lease.

Bea Hancock, owner of the building and postmistress for 22 years, says the family thought they could do the eviction nicely. "The whole point is the store has deteriorated and the complaints have been terrible. I'm not the one doing the complaining, it's the people. I have no desire to quarrel."

"We really do value the post office," she says. "It's a good location for us all."

When Clara Lindsay took over from her as postmistress, Mrs. Hancock continued to do the post office's books. She says the post office only makes about $650 a month, and by the time the Lindsays pay rent and expenses for another location, they won't be earning much profit.

Mr. Lindsay has accused Snowdon Reeve George Simmons of interference, adding Simmons is Mrs. Hancock's nephew.

"I've got a responsibility as a resident and as reeve," Simmons says in response. "As far as being a nephew, I can't avoid that. I've got no control over the actions of other people."

"I don't care where they move as long as the quality of service to Irondale is the same as before."

Simmons says the service at the store has deteriorated since the conflict and he is concerned there has been no public notification that the post office is moving.

The Lindsays have bought a trailer and hope to place it in a central location. However, Snowdon by-law officer Ernie Hills says the Lindsays have yet to apply for a rezoning to allow trailer use.

"The municipality is very restrictive in terms of trailers," Hills says. "They're not a permitted use except in designated areas such as trailer parks. We simply administer the by-laws, we don't have a whole lot of flexibility. The by-laws apply equally to everyone."

The next council meeting is December 9, at which time the Lindsays could approach council about the trailer. If council does grant a rezoning or minor variance, the public process would take an additional five weeks. As well, the Lindsays would need to get health unit approval.

Put aside differences, old council tells new

by MARTHA PERKINS
Editor

Work together and the county will benefit, county councillors said as they passed the political torch to the people who will be taking their places.

"It's been a trying year at times but everyone's worked for the betterment of this county as a whole," says retiring Sherborne et al reeve, Don Shortreed. "In the world there seems to be a lot of conflict and if all of us politicians work together, it will be a better place for our children."

"It's not all going to be a smooth road and you people have your work cut out for you."

Wednesday was the last session of the 1988-91 county council. Monmouth Reeve Keith Tallman told his departing brethren that he would miss them on the 1991-1994 council.

"It's been a really important time in my life," said Stanhope Reeve Harry Davis, who is also retiring after many years of public service. Not saying what he was alluding to, Davis also told the new councillors who were in the small audience that "I hope you will not be victims of malice and damaging rumours (and if so), that you'll be able to transcend them."

As advice, Davis said "If you take yourself too seriously a lot of this would drive you nuts."

"We've had differences and that's what democracy is all about," says Dysart et al Reeve Bill Davis, who's also stepping down. "But when we walk out we're friends and we've served the best interests of the people."

"Believe it or not, I've enjoyed the experiences and challenges of the past year," said Warden Carol Puffer, who was often under siege because of the county's 35 percent budget increase, the expense and seemingly inactivity of the new economic development department, and the near closure of the Chamber of Commerce because its county grant was unexpectedly slashed in half. To save money, Puffer cancelled the warden's banquet, the one chance perhaps that a warden can bask in praise and appreciation for a year of hard work.

Puffer emphasized the positive. "We've continued to move forward," she said, citing the completion of phase one of the waste management master plan, the first draft of the main goals of the two-tier county Official Plan, and the release of figures for a potential switch to market value reassessment.

To the new councillors, who take office December 1, "May it be as productive and satisfying for you as it has been to me."

the committee to raise funds for the expansion to St. Joseph's Hospital and has also sat on its board of trustees. She has served as president of the Chamber of Commerce twice, as president of the Haliburton branch of the Red Cross and also on the board of directors of the Haliburton Guild of Fine Arts.

Getting involved in the community was a natural thing for Dawson and she has enjoyed each activity she has undertaken.

"None is more challenging than the other because everything is different and you lend whatever talents you have to whatever you're involved in."

She did admit to having good organizational skills but insists that what she does for the community is no more special than what everyone does around here.

"It's hard not to be involved in a small community," she said. "I can't think of anyone who isn't involved in one thing or another and that's essentially small-town life: you help one another, and once you become involved in one thing, you tend to become involved in more."

She said she'll take a brief hiatus from committee work but realizes the battle for the hospital isn't over yet.

"We're the only area in the province without a chronic-care facility. We proved that we needed one but I'm not overly optimistic now because the government simply doesn't have any money at the moment."

Peter and Elke Schleifenbaum were presented with the Director's Award of Business Excellence for their work at the Haliburton Forest and Wildlife Reserve to raise the quality of life in the County.

"They have sought to manage and preserve the forests for future generations, stocked the lakes and attempted to use the property in a multifaceted approach of our traditional forestry management on the one hand while striking a balance with tourism in the other," Hagerman said in his introduction. "Thanks for giving us a place where wilderness and people can still meet."

Also at the meeting, Chairperson Curtis Eastmure presented the Auditor's Report of Dawson Gray that showed the Chamber ended up with a small surplus of $577 for the year and Victoria-Haliburton MP Bill Scott was on hand.

"We really should boast more in Canada," he said. "We have the second highest standard of living in the world but we don't sell it enough. We've got to have a sale and tell people more about what we offer."

Trekker walks to Canada's four corners

by MARTHA PERKINS
Editor

While the rest of the country argues about "Who are we?", Adam Kerr is searching for the answer with his feet — 18 months ago, the 26-year-old began his trek to the four corners of this vastness called Canada.

"I felt it was necessary, especially in this time of disunity," he says in an interview early Sunday afternoon at St. George's Anglican Church in Haliburton. "Our landscape is so large and intimidating that we're clustered around the American border. If we're going to change the way we feel about each other, we have to get to know each other and search for similarities. Politicians try to emphasize differences to get votes, I'm searching for similarities."

On May 14, 1990, Kerr left his home base of Ottawa, planning to spend the next five years walking to the four extremes of Canada, north, south, east and west. Since then, he has done a loop around Ontario, travelling 1,800 miles and reaching Canada's southernmost tip, Pelee Island near Windsor.

Working a month, walking a month, his next destination his Ottawa, where he will spend the winter earning funds for his walk to Cape Spear in Newfoundland. From there it's off (in the summer months) to Cape Columbia on Ellesmere Island and a mere hop, skip and a jump to Mount St. Elias in the Yukon, which is his westernmost destination. Down the coast of British Columbia he'll go, and then head home — all the way across the Rockies and Prairies. By the time he's done — and now he's not giving himself any time limit — he'll certainly have seen Canada.

Adam Kerr stopped by St. George's Church

Along the way he'll meet thousands of Canadians, and hear their stories as he shares his. When it's all over, he'll write a book similar to the one which inspired him to begin what to others is a madcap adventure. In A Walk Across America, Peter Jenkins is disillusioned about the United States and its embroilments in Watergate and the Vietnam War so he walks from New York to Oregon. "Before he went elsewhere he decided to give America another chance," says Kerr, who read the book when he was 15. "It showed me every country needs a Don Quixote."

Kerr's tilting at a very big windmill, but he's still very upbeat and positive about his plan. "I'm young, I'm healthy, I'm single and you see far more by touching the earth under your feet than any other way of travelling. Travelling is like a courtship: the longer you make the experience last, the more enhanced it gets, be that a courtship with a person or a place."

One thing he's learned is Canadians are very much influenced by their geography. "The more you get away from Metro Toronto, people become much more friendly. It's very regionalistic. Even in Southern Ontario there are very distinct regions. If these distinct pockets can survive in a place as complex and diverse as Ontario,

All for one

No one can be happy that the PineStone Inn is closing for the winter. Not the dozens of people who will be laid off for five months, not the owners of downtown businesses where paycheques used to be spent and supplies purchased, not the fellow resort operators who rely on a positive image to get tourists to visit the Highlands. And definitely not anyone who cares about the economic health of our community. PineStone's bad news is everyone's bad news.

Tourism relies on good impressions. This is people's escape from the harsh realities of daily life, so they don't want to drive past a resort which is closed for what should be one of the busiest seasons. If people phone the PineStone to make a reservation, only to find out the PineStone is closed, this doesn't mean they'll phone another resort in the Highlands. They have a bad taste in their mouth, the taste of recession, and they've been on a steady diet of that for far too long. Maybe things are more prosperous over in Muskoka.

The PineStone's problem is not the marketability of its winter-time assets. There's the nordic ski trails next door, downhill skiing a half hour away, and a growing willingness to stop complaining about winter and get out to enjoy it. But like so many other businesses, the PineStone's main problem seems to be a large debt load which it's having difficulty serving. Not only are the initial costs of turning a swamp into a five star resort 15 years ago still to be paid, but three years ago, PineStone undertook a massive expansion program. In a letter to The Echo obtained in September, 1990 under the Freedom of Information Act, the Ministry of Tourism records the following financial agreements: in 1980, a provincial $500,000 loan guarantee and subsidized interest; in 1986, a $46,488 federal grant for a market/feasibility study; in 1988, a provincial and federal $2.5-million incentive loan (interest free and under disbursement); and in 1989, a $200,000 marketing grant cost-shared by Ontario and Canada. (Through its advertisements, the PineStone was a major marketer of the Highlands.) There are also private investors demanding to get paid.

Should the province come in and bail out the PineStone, as it did for Minaki Lodge? That may be the saviour for the Highlands economy, but with the provincial economy the way it is, the suffering probably won't end until a private rescuer is found.

Worthy choices

Anyone who needs to ask why Barbara Dawson has been chosen as Highlander of the Year obviously hasn't seen her at work, which would be a difficult feat in itself. For years, the former nurse has been continuing her professional calling, helping others in the wider community, most noticeably in her efforts to bring 18 chronic care beds to Haliburton County. Since 1975, she has been pushing the district health council and a steady succession of governments to honour the research which clearly points out that the county's healthcare needs aren't being addressed. Through it all, she stayed above the political fray. It didn't matter whether she was talking to a Conservative Minister of Health, or a Liberal one or, now, the New Democrat(s) taking a kick at the can. Her only concern is the people of this county, not her own reward or recognition. With nothing to prove to anyone, she could remain true to herself, and being herself means being honest and dedicated. The distinction of being named Highlander of the Year is only one small way she will know of the high esteem in which she's held.

The Haliburton Forest and Wildlife Reserve, recipient of the Chamber of Commerce's business award, is also earning respect in the community. With 50,000 acres of lakes and forests, the owners' main concern is the land's environmental health; somehow they've got to find ways for a little economic reward without destroying a valuable piece of Ontario's natural heritage.

The Chamber may be suffering, but its judgement of the county's worthwhile endeavours is not.

Cottage vote not an intrusion

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

OUR READERS WRITE...

To the Editor:

According to the comments in November 19, Echo some people are upset with the fact that non-resident voters were a determining factor in the election results.

In response, I feel compelled to point out that no one seems upset with the fact that our taxes are not reduced because of our non-residency. Why should our vote be treated as an intrusion into the comfortable niche into which locals have settled?

I wish also to point out that so-called seasonal residents, in fact, live here year round. Many, like myself, are unwilling (or unable) to pay for the dubious distinction of being classed as 'permanent'.

I have no quarrel with the fact that my tax dollars only provide me with a year-round road and the right to take my garbage to the dump. I knew this when I bought on Lake Wenona. But to imply that I, along with other cottagers, should keep silent when it comes to spending this money is unconscionable.

(Mrs.) Margaret Montague,
 Lake Wenona.

Smear campaign

To the Editor:

Congratulations to Mr. Fred Gardner on becoming the new reeve of Stanhope. It is unfortunate, however, that he will never know whether or not he could have won without the touch of a smear campaign such as I witnessed in the City of Toronto this past month.

I have always felt our elections here in Stanhope were fair, open and above board. I could not believe the flyer that was in my mailbox when I returned home on the weekend, stating Mrs. Barker was irresponsible and insinuating she was not to be trusted.

We have lived in Stanhope for a period of 10 years and have always had, to the best of my knowledge, good coverage of the candidates and their positions on the issues, from both The Minden Times and The Haliburton County Echo. In addition, the opportunity to attend the all-candidates night enables one to question any candidate about any concerns we might have. Mrs. Barker's flyer invited voters to do just that — call her to address the issues and voice their concerns.

How sad to see the seamy side of big city politics slowly infiltrating in Stanhope Township politics.

Muskoka responds

To the Editor:

Couldn't help but notice your self-congratulatory column in the Echo of November 19 about your yeoman's effort to get the results of the municipal election in the paper not hours after the polls had closed.

Good for you. But your note about none of the Muskoka papers managing to do the same left us wondering if your perusal of the Muskoka press is restricted to the rags produced by the Muskoka Publications Group.

The Huntsville Forester, Muskoka's largest weekly, had the results for our area the day after. So did the Bracebridge Examiner and the Banner in Gravenhurst.

Journalistic initiative in this region does not only lie with the Echo.

THE QUESTION THAT some local people seem to be asking is "are we going to be over run by the visiting ducks and geese who have settled in the area?" Complaints from local residents have been coming my way to the effect that they find it very hard to go for a walk in Head Lake Park or to take a stroll down the walkway that leads to first crossing, without having to step aside to miss the droppings left from the waterfowl. On the other hand some people tell me that if we want the ducks and geese, this is the price that we will have to pay. Others are complaining that the droppings are getting into the water and polluting Head Lake. At Rotary Beach we understand that they have been swept off the dock into the lake. When asked about the solution to the problem many citizens are quick to reply that we have to stop feeding the ducks and geese. No matter what the outcome may be, we must not forget all those fine people who out of the generosity of their hearts, have supplied the feed up to this time for the waterfowl.

In high school hockey, the Haliburton H.H.S.S. Redmen will be at home to-morrow night (Wednesday, November 27) when they host Lakefield at the arena in Haliburton with game time slated for 7:30 p.m. On Monday night December 2, the Redmen will be in Lindsay to take on I.E. Weldon. The local team is dishing up some very exciting hockey and you won't want to miss the game on Wednesday evening.

If you were one of the unfortunate people who missed the Santa Claus parade held in Haliburton on Saturday you should make plans right now to be here next year when Santa Claus comes down the street. The majority of the large crowd who viewed the proceedings went home with the feeling that they had just witnessed one of the best parades ever held in the village of Haliburton. Over 40 floats, marching units and two bands made this a parade that we will remember for years to come. Our thanks to the members of the BIA who worked so hard to make this parade a success along with the Rotary and Lions clubs of Haliburton. The business community and all the businesses who entered floats deserve a tip of the hat for the effort they put forth to make this day a real success.

The members of the various churches in the village of Haliburton and surrounding area are being asked to support the 4C's Food Bank. Canned or packaged food donations would be greatly appreciated and can be dropped off at the 4C's or at any church in the area. There are families who are depending on these donations, so don't let them down.

The International Order of the Golden Rule (IOGR) recently announced that Gordon A. Monk Funeral Home Ltd. in Minden is beginning its 8th year as an IOGR member. IOGR is a not-for-profit funeral association formed in 1928 to help the general public by identifying and honoring outstanding funeral firms. The association is comprised of over 1500 respected funeral homes in the U.S., Canada and abroad. A firm's selection for membership requires community recommendations, adherence to strict professional standards of service and 100 percent approval by IOGR's Board of Directors. Members base service on the Golden Rule, "Do unto others as you would have others do unto you." "We're proud to recognize Gordon A. Monk Funeral Home Ltd. as an exceptional firm," IOGR Executive Director Dale Rollings said.

It's beginning to look a lot like Christmas on Haliburton's main street as new decorations were erected on the telephone poles from one end of the street to the other. There are some brand new decorations this year and they look very attractive. The Christmas music coming over the community P.A. system is enjoyed by all those out doing their Christmas shopping.

The Haliburton County Snowmobile Association has been the largest Snowmobile Club in the world for many seasons. They are very proud of this fact and in the club's recent newsletter they made it quite clear that they do not take their loyal members for granted. The members and executive work hard all year because they are proud of this club and the trail system. The HCSA admit that they had a few problems last year but they are convinced that they can provide good trails this winter in spite of ever increasing traffic from thousands of visiting snowmobilers each winter.

Helen Williams at "Zum Waldhaus" in Harcourt (lower Cardiff Road) has a mother Merganser duck and three baby ducklings visiting her lakefront every day. It's odd to have babies at this time of year (if you're a duck that is).

In fact Mrs. Gait was indeed a most uncommon woman. We used to stop at her house on our way to the cottage, three seasons out of four. In those days no one came to Haliburton in the winter. Snowmobiles were unheard of and few cottages were winterized. But whether it was late fall, with the wind whipping her hair into her eyes; early spring's the and pies. We couldn't have cared less about the eggs, but we loved the baking. Our mother would hesitate for what seemed like an eternity before answering. Sometimes she'd ask what kind of pies Mrs. Gait

Thanks, Haliburton, for great day for families

To the Editor:

When you were done doing all of that, then a bit of Christmas shopping at bargain prices felt like the thing to do since everyone was in the spirit of things. I hope this nice day helped the shopkeepers to generate some business during these tough economic times.

By the time you finished partaking in all of those events then it was time to move over to the Molou theatre for a free movie, "The Nutcracker Prince", Mr. Magoo (haven't seen him in years) and the Three Stooges. With the movie house being full to capacity, I was expecting it to be a zoo in there, but the shows were captivating and everyone behaved.

Thanks Haliburton, for the great day. Everyone did a super job to make this day work; I hope everyone else there enjoyed it as much as we did. Keep up the good work.

Hardware elusive for Huskies in tourney

The Keith Jackson Real Estate PeeWees hosted a 12-team tournament on the weekend.

The tournament organizers would like to thank Westside Jug City for sponsoring the event and the many volunteers who made it a huge success. Special thanks must go out to Brian Hunt, Ron Bradley, Glen Sharpley, Gary Brohman, Chris Hodgson, Len Salvatori, Paul Morissette, Lynette Elstone, Bob Jackson and Claudette O'Neil for volunteering their services without having a boy involved in hockey at the PeeWee level.

Keith's boys played five games and performed exceptionally well! In their first game, they downed Minden 1-0 behind some exceptional goaltending by Blaze Foster and Brock Glendinning, Aaron Galbraith scored the winner with Josh Burk collecting the assist. Justin Rowden was equally spectacular in the Minden net.

The next opposition was a formidable opponent from Peterborough. Haliburton was able to keep the game scoreless until the midway point of the second period as a result of more great goaltending and the exceptional defensive play of Matt Galbraith but Peterborough was not to be denied. Once they penetrated, they could not be stopped. When the final buzzer blew it was Peterborough 5—Haliburton 0.

The third game saw Keith's boys tie Bancroft 1-1 when Josh Burk tied the game with just 1:28 remaining on a beautiful set up by Ian Clements. Again, Haliburton got great goaltending and fine defensive play from Josh Dennis and Andy Madill.

Haliburton qualified for the consolation semi-final by finishing in second place in their four team division. They met Sutton in the semi-final game and came away victors as a result of some fine two-way play by Curtis Reynolds and single goals by Ian Clements and Josh Burk. Burk's goal came with the game tied 1-1 and just 15 seconds remaining.

The coaches and parents recovered from cardiac arrest in time to take on Oak Ridges in the consolation final. Rene Gagnon gave it a game try on his pulled groin but could not continue. Ian Clements was confined to the bench with a sore back but Mike Bradley and Jon Hebert played outstanding games and Kevin Simms filled in admirably for the injured players. A bigger and stronger Oak Ridges team beat Haliburton 2-0 but not before Glen Sharpley of the Sport Stop via he Minnesota North Stars and Chicago Black Hawks remarked "That Bill Dovell is some hockey player!"

The championship final pitted Huntsville against Peterborough. Both teams were highly skilled and well coached but the bigger, stronger, well rested Peterborough team prevailed by a margin of 4-2.

Peterborough's coaching staff was an excellent blend of experience and youth that had obviously taught skills, tactics, strategy and values that were readily apparent to this observer.

Haliburton's OMHA Pee Wees fell behind Bancroft on the shot above but were able to celebrate shortly after when Josh Burk tied it up in their third tournament game Saturday night to advance to the consolation semifinal. The team lost the consolation final 2-0 to Oak Ridges on Sunday afternoon.

Redmen lose key players and fight-filled matchup

by MARK PUBLICOVER
Staff Reporter

The HHSS Redmen came up against a hot goaltender and dropped a 3-1 decision to LCVI in North Kawartha High School Hockey League action last Wednesday at the Haliburton Arena.

The game started off rough and the referee ended up handing out 83 minutes in penalties and six game misconducts before the final buzzer.

"They were bigger than us but we held our own," coach Ron Yake said. "We had a few good chances early in the game but their goalie came up big."

The Spartans scored late in the first period to take a 2-0 lead after which Redmen defenseman Hunter Obee put his dukes up against LCVI's Kyle Higham in the first fight on the night's card. Both were ejected and assessed automatic game misconducts. A second fighting offence carries an automatic five-game misconduct.

In the second period, Kevin Morissette scored on a nice passing play from brother Mark and Derek Wilson to make it 2-1 but LCVI scored just 14 seconds later to regain their two-goal advantage which they held to the end.

Kevin Morissette and Darren Johnson joined teammate Obee in the dressing room during the third period as both were ejected for

Novices win pair to keep streak alive

Who's afraid of the big bad Bears?

The OMHA Novice Huskies answered that question in last week's hockey activity while finding out a little bit about themselves at the same time. Haliburton beat Bracebridge 9-7 and Cannington 3-1 and are now undefeated in their past 12 games.

Bracebridge's powerful Bears squad had the luxury of selecting from 80 kids in tryouts and consequently ices a frighteningly solid team. But Haliburton's Huskies, who had about 18 hopefuls out at the start of the season, wouldn't back down even when everyone in the arena expected them to. The result was a lot of fun to watch.

In Friday nights exhibition clash of titans, Huskies were looking forward to playing the most talented team they've seen. Unfortunately they demonstrated convincingly the effects of not playing in 12 days and quickly fell behind 5-1 after turning in their flattest period of hockey this season. It was a bit like running up the down escalator in this 45 minute stop time marathon, but the boys got themselves upright early in the second, stumbled steadily forward and then sprinted into the 3rd period to run away with a gritty, satisfying 9-7 come from behind win.

Huskies got leadership from where they most expect it; their big guns, Mike Craigen and Ryan Simioni combined for 11 points and goal tender Adam Wilson simply closed the door in the second and third periods. After a long struggle back, Huskies finally got back to even ground at 9:28 of the 3rd period and from then on there was no doubt about the final outcome of this one.

Scot Curry got his biggest goal of the year when Ryan Wood slipped him a neat pass in the slot and the hard working winger whirled and drilled a low hard shot into the net which not only tied it 6-6 but also put a charge into the Haliburton bench. Even when slapped with a 5 minute major penalty with six minutes remaining, the boys found a way to survive.

Tight checking kept the reins on Simioni for most of the night, but with the game on the line, the big horse finally broke free to decide it, pouring in 3 goals in the final 4 minutes. Mike Craigen had 3 goals, 3 assists and Shane Campbell, Chris Nimigon and Scot Curry each had a goal. Bobby Hebert, Ryan Wood, Danny Koz and Jamie Johnston contributed assists and Jeff Wilson, playing in uncharted waters, showed real promise and a willingness to bang. Hebert also revived a shaky defense with another steady outing.

Perhaps a little drained from the long intense Bracebridge game, the Huskies put out just enough to avoid losing on Sunday in Cannington. After a leisurely first half which featured no scoring and less effort, Haliburton finally broke on top at 5:13 of the second when Ryan Simioni scored unassisted and then set up Chris Nimigon a few minutes later.

Cannington came back to make it 2-1 in the third, but Simioni capped a fine night scoring from Craigen with less than 4 minutes remaining to put the game away.

Huskies are now sporting an impressive 14-1-1 overall record and head into their home tournament on a roll. Sat. Nov. 30 is the date for their one day, eight team event featuring teams from Sutton, Stouffville, Cobourg, Huntsville, Lindsay, Ajax and Omeme, so be sure to come out and do some screaming.

LENDING A BROOM: Skip Lee Thurston moves up to help Ron Stackhouse broom during the Early Bird Men's Bonspiel Saturday night at the Haliburton Curling Club. The event featured 16 teams visiting from Toronto, Peterborough, Barrie and Minden. The Haliburton team of skip Jim Scheffee, vice Bob McNaull, second John Wilson and lead Mike McNaull were the winners.

Tykes down Minden 5-0

The Jasco Minor Tykes beat the Minden Minor Tykes 5-0 on Saturday 23.

A lot more often than at their first meeting, Minden goalie Alex Lydiatt stopped numerous Haliburton opportunities to keep the Minden game close. Finally, Matthew Brown scored on a nice pass from the corner by Jason Chamber who received the puck from Dustin Prindiville. Jason Chambers put Haliburton up by two on a set up from Matthew Brown. Morgan English started a three goal outburst by Haliburton in the second period. Cory Sisson set up Morgan English.

Jason Chambers moved the Huskies into a 4-goal lead when he was set up by Cory Sisson. Jason Chambers rounded out the scoring with an unassisted goal, this goal was also his hat trick goal, his second of the year. Matthew Marlin playing his first full game in the net earned the shutout. Matthew stopped Colin Vator on several break aways the last one coming with only 5 seconds left in the game.

Tykes romp again

On Sat. Nov. 16, the Haliburton Minor Tykes travelled to Fenelon Falls to play the Fenelon Major Tykes.

This was Haliburton's toughest opponent yet. The two teams played a close checking period of hockey, with Either team being able to put the puck behind the opposing goal tender. Finally, midway thru the second period Ryan Taylor beat the Fenelon Goal tender after being set up by Matthew Marlin. Early in the third period with some hard work in front of the net Jason Chambers banged in Haliburton's second goal, earning an assist was Ryan Taylor.

Two minutes later Ryan Goldenberg but Haliburton up by three with some nice work around the net, setting Ryan up was Matthew Marlin with his second assist. With just over two minutes left in the game, Ryan Taylor scored Haliburton's last goal of the game with a nice end to end rush. The Fenelon Falls goalie stopped Ryan's first shot but Ryan was able to put it in on his back hand.

Cory Sisson kept the Fenelon Falls team at bay earning a 4-0 shutout. The whole team played a solid defense game helping to keep their goals against down to 0.40, having allowed only 2 in 5 games while scoring 67.

The Haliburton Minor Tykes would like to congratulate Ralph and Carol Gerry on the arrival of Cody a new brother for Ross and Matthew.

The team travelled to Sunderland their roles in the second and third fights of the evening. Both centre-men, their one-game suspensions will hurt the Redmen significantly when they face-off against Lakefield tomorrow night at 7:30 at the Haliburton Arena.

LCVI knocked off Lakefield 4-3 earlier this year, so it should be close but HHSS would have been better off with two of their three starting centre-men.

HHSS, now 2-2, leads Lakefield by one point in the standings in the league's West Division.

Wilberforce oldtimers beginning new season

Another exciting season of oldtimers hockey faced off last Thursday night in Wilberforce.

Six teams: Apsley, Bancroft I.G.A., Bancroft Canadian Tire, Haliburton, Rainbow Auto Glass and Wilberforce, Tuff it out to see who is the best of the old. The year's first contest was a battle between I.G.A. and Rainbow resulting in a 5-3 decision for I.G.A. (due to opening night jitters we do not have the night's scoring heroes.

In the next match up, Canadian Tire downed Wilberforce 6-2. Game three ended with Haliburton easily handling Apsley 14-1. (Scoring Heros!!!!)

Next Thursday's action pits I.G.A. against C.T.C., Wilberforce vs Apsley and Haliburton vs Rainbow. All games are played in Wilberforce, 7:00, 8:00, 9:00 p.m. starts on Thursdays.

Come out and cheer the old boys on!

Midgets fill the net to build impressive record

Since our first report, the Haliburton Midget's have played five games and posted four wins and a tie to bring their overall record to nine wins, a loss and a tie.

November 5 brought Sutton to town and the team skated to an 11-2 win. Darren Johnston led the way with three goals. Derek Wilson and Bill Bradley fired two each with singles going to Chris Greenfield, Jeff Black, Richie Mills and Greg Stamp. Stamp and Bradley had five assists apiece, Mills two and Black one.

On Nov. 10 the team travelled to Bobcaygeon and emerged with a 15-1 victory. No, this is not a misprint, the boys seemed to score at will. Bill Bradley led the onslaught with five goals. Chris Greenfield and Derek Wilson each fired a hat trick with singles going to Greg Stamp, Kevin Buchanan, Peter VanLeeuwen and Garwood Thomas. Mike MacKenzie chipped in with six helpers. Jeff Black had four with Greenfield, Buchanan and Mike Billings adding two apiece. Singles went to Derek Wilson, Greg Stamp and Mike MacKenzie.

In both these games strong performances were turned by both goaltenders — Bill Smith and Tom McCracken. With the defense moving the puck quickly out of our zone the result was two convincing wins.

On Nov. 16 the team visited Woodville and left with a 5-5 draw. Goal scorers were Mike Billings, Darren Johnston, Derek Wilson, Steve McCracken and Bill Bradley. Jeff Black and Chris Greenfield contributed two assists each with singles going to Billings, Bradley, Wilson and Mike MacKenzie.

On Nov. 19 Haliburton hosted Port Perry and scored a 6-1 win. Jeff Black led the team with two goals with singles going to Derek Wilson, Mike MacKenzie, Peter VanLeeuwen and Steve McCracken. Assists went to Bill Bradley, Chris Greenfield, Darren Johnston, Greg Stamp, Mike Billings, Steve McCracken and Mike MacKenzie.

Nov. 23 saw Sunderland pay Haliburton a visit. The final score was 5-4 in our favor. It took the guys two periods to wake up and overcome a 4-1 disadvantage. Four third period markers and the team had their ninth win of the year. Greg Stamp had two goals with singles going to Derek Wilson, Mike Billings and MacKenzie.

MEN'S HOCKEY

by Mark Publicover

IT WOULD TAKE a brave (or stupid) person to bet on the outcome of any games in this year's Haliburton Men's Hockey League.

Sunday's action saw the league standings mixed up again as teams leap-frogged over one another with, of course, the exception of Roberts-Austin, which kept its perfect record in tact and opened a four-point lead atop the standings.

Monday, Nov. 18

Bishop & Wilson 14, Emmerson Lumber 6

It was the Erin Nicholls and Dean Curry show during a make-up game on Nov. 18 as Bishop & Wilson moved temporarily into second place after building an 8-0 lead and coasting to victory.

Nicholls increased his lead in the league's scoring race with 10, yes 10, points on five goals and five assists, while linemate Curry had six assists to go with his five goals for eleven, yes eleven, points on the evening. Curry had a natural hat-trick in the first period and Nicholls' third goal midway through the second period put them up by eight and probably made Emmerson goaltender Vince Duchene wish the game could end there.

Sorry, Vince. Rod Sisson scored with 10 seconds left in the middle frame to make it 11-1 going into the third but Emmerson came alive as Chris Nelthorpe scored three to make it somewhat respectable at the final buzzer. Dan Curry had two goals and two assists for the winners and Pete Johnson scored their other goal. Rob Abbs, Ed Davis and Brian Mulholland rounded out the scoring for Emmerson, which temporarily dropped to the cellar with a 1 and 4 record.

Sunday, Nov. 24

Haliburton Lumber 10, Vasey Insurance 4

Vasey led this one 3-1 after the first period, but Haliburton Lumber acted like the weather and stormed back with nine straight goals to take sole possession of fourth place.

Floyd Henry set up Bernie Upton for all of Vasey's goals but five different people scored for the Lumberers by the end of the second frame and they led 5-3. Vasey couldn't stop the Haliburton onslaught and the Lumberers struck for five more with Greg Carpenter completing his hat-trick before Upton ended the scoring with just 43 seconds left. Kevin Phillips, Scott Rae and Dave Hicks each scored twice for Haliburton Lumber while Kevin Sisson scored their other goal and Ernie Bain chipped in with two assists. The loss drops Vasey into a fifth-place tie with two other teams.

Roberts-Austin 6, Youngdale Fuels 3

Once again, Roberts-Austin came up big in the third period and padded their first-place lead with a big win in the Petrol Bowl.

Roberts-Austin wouldn't have needed a big third period if Youngdale goaltender Craig Woods hadn't been as hot as he was. Youngdale had two less players and it showed as the game wore on but Woods kept them in it.

Andy Salvatori's second goal of the game tied it 3-3 late in the second period but the Flames' line of Hugh Nichol, Ryce Jenkins and Dan 'Book 'em Danno' Ambridge threw the puck around exceptionally well and finally beat Woods to put it away in the third. Nichol had a pair for the winners, while singles went to Joe Roberts, Jenkins, Ambridge and myself. Ambridge and Jim Burk each added two assists for Roberts-Austin and Len Hodgson scored the other goal for Youngdale, which is now tied for fifth place in the standings.

Elstone Motors 6, Bishop & Wilson 4

Don Cherry would have loved this one as referees Floyd Henry and Ernie Bain handed out 51 minutes in penalties in a game for sole possession of second place.

Surprisingly enough, only two power-play goals were scored, but they made the difference as Elstone stretched its unbeaten streak to five games and held league-leading scorer Erin Nicholls to one goal.

The teams traded goals and were deadlocked 2-2 going into the third but Darrell Stamp put the surveyors up before Ron Yake scored this first of his two power-play goals (and the second of his four goals on the night) to even it up with 13 minutes to play. Glen Sculley scored the winner with five minutes left and Yake added an insurance goal with one-minute left.

Steve Smith scored Elstone's other goal while Nicholls, Dean Curry and Rod Sisson scored the others for B & W. Stamp had two assists to go along with his goal for the losers, who drop to third place with a 3-2-1 record.

Emmerson Lumber 13, Curry Motors 1

Good investments are hard to come by in these tough economic times, but Emmerson Lumber's investment in new team sweaters seems to have paid off in a big way.

After losing 14-6 a week ago, the new-look Emmerson Sharks got some top-notch goaltending from Vince Duchene and lots and lots of goals to get out of the damp and dingy basement to make room for the Motors, who have now allowed 50 goals against them.

Emmerson led 6-0 after one period and 9-0 after two and went ahead 10-0 before Curry sharpshooter Chris Hodgson finally got one past Duchene. Rob Abbs and Chris Nelthorpe each had hat-tricks for the winners, Mike MacNaull and Steve Cooper scored two a piece and Ed Davis, Wade MacInnes and Glen Fick added singles. MacInnes had four assists, Fick had three and Brian Mulholland two.

that lesson can be applied to Canada as a whole.

"There are definitely complaints about the government everywhere you go, but unfortunately there are very few people who are interested in going out and finding out what the issues mean instead of just complaining."

He laughs and says not everyone has to walk 1,800 to discover what Canada is like.

When asked what his family thinks of all this, he says he was raised by foster parents who both passed away with cancer. In his journey of discovery, he also wanted to discover more about his biological family and what caused their separation. This was achieved and after he met his family, "because I wasn't raised with them they don't feel in a position to criticize me."

Kerr came to Haliburton by way of Peterborough. He got the name of Rob Luxton, the curate at St. George's and St. Margaret's in Wilberforce, from an Anglican priest. When Kerr passed through Gooderham, he phoned Rev. Luxton from Les Smith's constructed house near the Glamorgan/Dysart Boundary Road. Rev. Luxton drove him to Wilberforce for the night and returned him to the Boundary Road the next morning so Kerr could resume his trek.

Shifting his massive and heavy knapsack onto his shoulders, Kerr heads down the hill towards Head Lake, on his way to the Lakeview Motel where he'll take in the Grey Cup game and spend the night. "I'm a big Argo fan," he explains.

But he's a bigger fan of Canada, and by the time he's crossed its shores, he hopes he'll have found some converts.

on Sunday to play the Sunderland Major Tykes. The Sunderland team proved to be too strong for the Haliburton team, by being able to keep the play in Haliburton's end for 75 percent of the game.

Jason Chambers played strong in net stopping many Sunderland opportunity. The Sunderland team seems destined to be moving up to Novice "C". Matthew Marlin was the only one to beat the Sunderland goalie, by banging in a Ryan Taylor rebound. The Haliburton Tykes played their strongest game of the year but in a losing cause, losing 6-1.

JUMPING FOR LIFE: Grade 4 Gooderham Elementary School student Stacy Gill, 9, takes part in Jump Rope for Heart, an event to raise money for the Heart and Stroke Foundation, on Nov. 20 at the Gooderham Community Centre. Over 30 Gooderham students took part and raised about $400 by collecting pledges from friends and relatives.

Fishing season ends

The fishing season is once again drawing to a close in Algonquin Provincial Park.

"This year is the same as previous years, with all fishing activity in the Park closing from December 1st until the last Saturday in April," says Richard Stankiewicz, the Park's district Enforcement Coordinator.

Considering that snowmachines are not allowed in most of Algonquin Park, this means that the winter fishing closure is affecting few people, as most lakes would be difficult to get to without the aid of snowmachines.

There are many other angling opportunities available during the winter months in Division 15 which surrounds Algonquin Park. For details, contact the District Office that is nearest to the area in which you wish to fish.

Valentine gets his wish building something.

"To me the roads are absolutely essential. The whole economy of the area depends on roads, they're the real basis of county development."

In his first month, Valentine has been acquainting himself with the roads and the staff who maintain them. The former provide many challenges because of the rough terrain; the latter have impressed Valentine with their dedication, capability and competence. "Bill Everson has been here since 1972. He knows every inch of every road and he's a craftsman like my dad."

Valentine doesn't even mind being in the public eye again. "My family ran the gas station in Norland for 50 years and the customer was always right. Service to other people is a worthwhile occupation to be in."

Although he has no specific plans at the moment and will follow existing needs studies, Valentine does hope to implement a computerized mapping system, in conjunction with the planning department. (The county has applied for a $10,000 grant.) All municipal information, from by-laws to potholes in the road can be recorded and called up as needed. "It ties all types of data to geographic location" and is used by many of the consulting engineering companies the county hires so at present "we're left out of it."

As to other projects, roads can always be improved. "The big question is how much the county decides to spend and how much the province will spend."

The excitement Valentine feels about the challenges of his new job is indicative of his approach to life — he loves learning about new things.

His first degree was a Bachelor of Agriculture from University of Guelph, which was more his mother's idea. Then he got a U of T engineering degree and was hired as Victoria County's assistant engineer. Five years later he was made engineer, a post he held for two years.

Then, the colleges of applied arts and technology began springing up around the province. Valentine joined Sir Sandford Fleming College in its infancy and developed the civil engineering courses for the Peterborough campus. When the program was in place, he accepted a job as a surveying teacher for the forestry students in Lindsay.

In the midst of his teaching career, he needed a change. His brother Bill (a councillor in Lutterworth and former HHSS teacher) had just returned from Africa, giving his younger brother all sorts of ideas. From 1971 to 1973, Dave Valentine and his wife Carole and two young children lived in Africa, where Valentine taught and developed curriculum.

Back to the humdrum of teaching, the Valentines were soon on the move again, this time with a third child as well. In the 1979-80 term, Valentine took all the course work at Florida State University for his doctorate in education but never did the dissertation.

The most recent challenge was the year spent at the University of Edinburgh, where Valentine earned his Masters of Science and Natural Resource Management.

Because they haven't sold their Lindsay home yet, Valentine is commuting to Haliburton. Their daughter Meghan is married and living in Burlington, son Tavis is finishing his degree at Western University and son Andrew was, on the day of the interview, somewhere in Zanzibar. Obviously sharing his parents' taste for a challenge, the 17-year-old is spending four months on a tall ship.

Right now, however, his father is glad to stay put. Now that he's finally found his own niche in the Highlands, he'll let the county's road system take him to where he's always wanted to be.

TO WAX OR not to wax, that is the question! Listen up would-be Nordic Skiers.

If you're just getting into the sport and haven't yet bought equipment, ask yourself "What are my primary intentions? Do I hope to get into racing, or do I just want to have fun? Who will I be skiing with, and how often will I ski?"

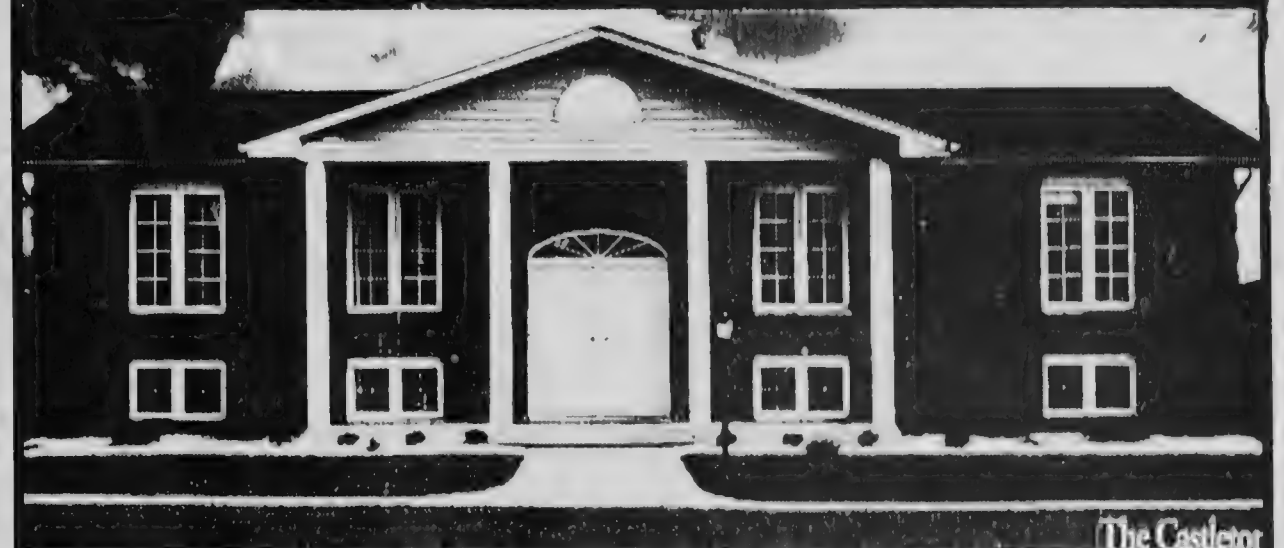

If the answers are fun, friends, occasionally; then you should consider Waxless Skis. Waxless are less technical, less headache and good for almost all snow conditions. When you put your weight on the ski, the molded pattern of scales or crowns on the base of the ski presses onto the snow to hold firm and prevent backsliding.

There are drawbacks — waxless tend to be noisy, slower on downhill runs than waxable skis, and the pattern does wear out over time.

Next column we'll continue the debate; meantime—you can get a season's pass by calling 457-1640. Happy trails.

Recession not affecting building permits this year

by NANCY KUZMICH
Staff Reporter

The current recession is having an impact on almost everyone. A good indicator of the economy's health is the sluggish housing market which was enjoying an unprecedented boom only a couple of years ago.

Although building inspectors in Haliburton County report varying levels of new building permits issued, the construction industry is in a slump.

"Things in the area aren't as good as we'd like," says contractor John Robinson, president of the Haliburton County Home Builders' Association. "It looks like we're in for a long, lean winter but I'm maintaining some hope that things will get better."

Robinson says he's basing that hope on recent indications that things may turn around by spring.

"With interest rates reduced now, maybe the housing market will start to pick up in the city and then hopefully here."

Dysart's building inspector says the 375 building permits issued so far this year is normal.

"Keep in mind we just went through a long period from 1988 to 1990," says Don Van Nood. "Prior to that we were processing the same amount, if not less, than this year."

"There's been a good mix of cottages and dwellings and a fair amount of expensive additions. We've also been lucky in that there's been some large projects, in particular the Echo Hills building."

But Robinson says renovations don't mean the same dollar value for builder. As well, a lot of pre-fabrication companies are moving in to the area.

"There have already been some layoffs in the business with more pending by Christmas," he says. "Builders will have to be strong enough to weather the storm or they may go under."

Stanhope's building inspector James Moore says he's issued 115 permits this year, which is the same as other years. He says the number of cottages is down but permanent residences are on the rise.

"Every permit for a residential home was for an expensive one — $150,000 and up."

Municipal officials in Monmouth and Glamorgan report building permits are down this year with most being applications for additions, garages or decks.

Sherborne's permits are up this year with additions and seasonal residences making up most of them.

"Oddly enough, even with a recession, we're up about 10 per cent," says building inspector Sandy McLean. "We're probably going to do a bit better because I've already got half a dozen more permits pending."

Anson, Hindon and Minden's building inspector says there's not much of a change in the number of permits but the dollar value is definitely up.

"So far, we have seven less single family dwellings than last year," says Tom Hubercheck. "But we've had some commercial growth and some townhouse units put in."

"People are being careful. We were busy in the fall because in my opinion people were waiting for the interest rates to bottom out. When those rates fell, we were cranking out the permits."

A REFORMED EXECUTIVE: At a recent general membership meeting of the Reform Party of Canada, members elected an executive slate, seen above, representing all parts of the Victoria-Haliburton riding.

CAS optimistic

by MARTHA PERKINS
Editor

The executive director of the Haliburton, Kawartha, Pine Ridge Children's Aid Society is optimistic about a ministry review of the agency's delivery of services.

"It looks like our volume is substantially higher than other agencies," says Robert Penny in an interview from his office in Peterborough. "Why is that? Are we as busy as we appear to be?"

"We welcome the ministry's study. They'll get a real eyeful of what it's like to be under intense pressure and why our staff is breaking down and leaving. We're not shy about this."

Two of the questions are: is the CAS opening cases when it shouldn't be and keeping them open longer than necessary?

The review is part of the attempt to trim an expected $300,000 shortfall in next year's budget. The province has agreed to increase funding 20 percent to $7,182,500 but, Penny stresses, "that's all we're going to get. They will not be able to get us any more money and will leave us $300,000 short."

"It's costing too much money to run the organization and the ministry says they can get to the bottom of it," Monmouth Reeve Keith Tallman said in his CAS report to county council on Wednesday.

"I don't think we'll lose Children's Aid in Haliburton County," Tallman said. "But it's like everything else — can we afford to provide some of the services they want us to provide?"

Tallman also noted that a recently released study said the Peterborough-based CAS had too many workers. When questioned by The Echo, Penny said the consultant failed to look at the CAS's operations throughout the year. Using hypothetical figures, he said if the CAS had 300 cases on January 1 and 300 cases by December 31, you could argue there's too much staff, as the consultant did. However, that fails to consider the 1,000 cases which were opened and closed throughout the year.

"You have to look at what happened that year," Penny says, adding that another method of reading the caseload statistics concludes there are too few workers. "We've done a tremendous volume."

Mussels not local threat

by MARK PUBLICOVER
Staff Reporter

The dreaded Zebra mussel is not a serious threat to most of Haliburton County's lakes, District Biologist Dave McLeish of the Ministry of Natural Resources says.

"Most of the lakes in the county straddle the Canadian Shield and as a result have low levels of calcium which the Zebra mussel needs to produce its shell," he told The Echo.

The MNR confirmed last week that the striped, thumbnail-sized mussels have been seen in Kawartha Lakes including Balsam, Rice and Big Bald Lakes, south of Haliburton County.

Lakes susceptible to infestation, he said, are those with limestone bottoms which have a high calcium content and include lakes in the extreme south of this county and most of the southern Kawarthas.

Hwy. 503 is a rough boundary below which lakes are more susceptible and McLeish mentioned Four-Mile Lake, Dalrymple Lake, Shadow Lake and Head Lake in Laxton as some of the lakes that could be seriously affected.

"The mussels could impair the intake of water for cottages and cause problems for recreational boating because they can foul up the motor," he says.

The exotic species has ruined beaches and threatened fish stocks in the Great Lakes by consuming their primary source of food, plankton.

Dr. Terry Quinney, the provincial coordinator for fish and wildlife services for the Ontario Federation of Anglers and Hunters, says inland waters don't have the same absorption powers as larger bodies of waters and are therefore at more risk.

"As far as we know, certain fish species in the Kawarthas could be devastated," he says in a press release. "If fish species are disrupted, countless other kinds of wildlife, insects and plants will be affected."

The provincial government has established an annual $2.1-million budget to battle Zebra mussels but Quinney says many more resources must be used for research and control methods to slow their spread.

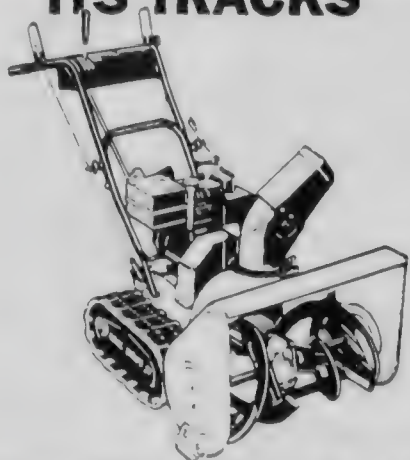

I would like to thank all those who supported me in the municipal election.

I appreciate your vote of confidence.

KEEP YOUR ENERGY USE DOWN WHEN THESE GO UP.

Every year millions of colourful, festive lights decorate homes, office buildings and evergreens across the province.

But you can neatly trim the amount of electricity your lights use; without affecting your enjoyment one bit.

If you're planning to buy new strings of lights, or replace old, worn ones, try energy saving 5-watt bulb strings, instead of the usual 7-watts. They come in the same colours, and are every bit as cheery and festive. But they use up to 30% less electricity and for that they deserve a special holiday cheer.

You can also save energy by turning your holiday lights off when you're not at home. And by using a timer, you can set your lights to turn on and off automatically, ensuring they are not left on all night.

By doing these little things, you can save energy while enjoying a bright holiday season.

For more information on energy saving lighting call, toll free, 1-800-263-9000. And have a safe and happy holiday season.

Mrs. Gait's business expands

bread without asking about the pies. It depended on whether she was dieting that week as well as how much housekeeping money she had left to stretch to Friday.

Mrs. Gait would stand patiently by the car door, one hand held in the other while our mother decided. Then Mrs. Gait would walk up to her house and return in no time with a paper bag or two, depending on the order. The bags had already been used before and you could see where the wrinkles had been smoothed flat. I used to picture Mrs. Gait collecting cardboard egg trays and paper bags for her business from all her friends and relatives.

We never got to see her house and as kids we would have liked to.

Just out of curiosity, we would have liked to see the kitchen that produced the wonderful baking and the trays of eggs waiting for the next customer to drive up. Since she was so quick returning to the car with our order, we knew she had to have everything ready just behind the door she disappeared through. The chickens were out back of her house in a fenced off area. I'm sure there must have been days in the summer when the wind blowing the wrong way would send weaker people scrambling. But not Mrs. Gait. Her smile never faltered.

She had a small sign that said 'eggs' in uneven letters out beside the road. But I don't think that is how our mother found out about Mrs. Gait. I'm sure it was from a neighbour on the lake. I do know that mother told other women about Mrs. Gait once she had done business with her a few times. Word of mouth, the oldest and best advertising in the world, we heard Mrs. Gait tell mother more than once.

There was no evidence of anyone else living in that little house except Mrs. Gait. Of course, since we had never been inside, we couldn't be sure. But she never mentioned anyone else. That always seemed strange because Mrs. Gait looked like she should have had a houseful of children. She always wore a cotton housedress with a bib apron over top. Her hair was blond with liberal dabs of grey and her well fed face had the ruddy colour of robust good health. In the warm months strong arms and legs flashed with her movements around the car. An air of capable domesticity surrounded her.

The second year mother returned to Mrs. Gait, business became less formal. Mrs. Gait has a picnic table set beside the driveway and sometimes the two women would sit and chat for a few minute while we ran over for a chance on the swing strung between two pines. By then Mrs. Gait had a small garden and sold corn and potatoes in the late summer. Her sign by the road was large and included 'home baking'. Besides bread and pies, she also made muffins and buns. The chickens still clucked behind the house but they seemed to be taking second place to Mrs. Gait's now diversified business.

The following year I was older and no longer interested in accompanying mother everywhere in the car. She still frequently came home with fresh eggs and baking and we all took it for granted. Then one day I walked into the cottage to see her unpacking store bought eggs in a brand new egg carton. I asked her why she had eggs from a store instead of Mrs. Gait. To my surprise I heard that Mrs. Gait was no longer in business and in fact had moved away several months before.

Seeing my surprise, mother said she thought I knew. Apparently Mrs. Gait had saved enough money to buy a small bakery with an apartment over top in town. She was doing a nice little business according to mother, although her pies weren't quite as good as when she baked them in her wood cook stove. Of course the chickens had to go. She couldn't keep them in town. But they had served their purpose. Everyone buys eggs and city people in particular like the idea of fresh eggs. Mrs. Gait had told mother one day when the two of them had sat chatting at the picnic table. Once people began stopping for eggs, Mrs. Gait was able to sell them other things besides. The eggs just brought them to her door. "She's a smart business woman," said mother, putting away the rest of the groceries. That's when I realized how much mother had admired Mrs. Gait.

My final Chamber column

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

by: SHAWN HAGERMAN

WITH THE ELECTION of a new board of Directors, my term comes to an end, and with it my mandate as a director, a treasurer, a public relations chairman, and a column writer. It is writing the column that, perhaps, I have enjoyed the most of all. It is akin to a hanging in the morning, in that it tends to condense your thoughts and clarify your ideas as the relentless weekly deadline approaches every Wednesday evening.

Writing and words always have held for me a certain fascination. Sigmund Freud once wrote, "Words and magic were in the beginning one and the same thing and even today words retain much of their magical power." There is a certain satisfaction in the creative process of forming thoughts into words and then sharing it with others.

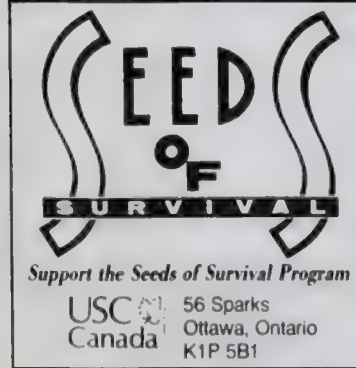

There is never a good time to leave the Chamber board. If the Chamber is doing what it is supposed to do, that is promoting economic activity in Haliburton County, then things will always be in turmoil. I remember a frosty evening in Oct., 1980, when Bob Stinson asked if I would like to be on the board. I asked "What do you do?" and he said just go to the odd meeting every once in a while. The next night, I was a new director. It's been a wild ride ever since, having worked with six managers, various different directors, and many good people on the municipal level.

From each, I have learned a lot, and would like to thank everybody for the opportunity to have learned, and to have grown, and to have served. After 11 years, there are simply other things I want to do, other areas I want to serve, and it was with great reluctance that I chose to draw the curtain here, so another door could then be opened somewhere else.

The Chamber has always had dark hours. I will never forget as a new director being hunkered down in then President, Ken Langdon's, living room. We, as usual, had no money, and had just learned the building inspector had condemned our old office. As we dithered about what to do, Ken cut through the gloom by saying he would, if needed, personally guarantee the loan to build a new office. It was that determination and leadership that is always there in the business community that is the Chamber's greatest strength. It was the same this year when volunteers came forward to help staff our office. The Chamber will survive because the members have a real need for an organization that represents them, their concerns, their hopes, and their dreams.

As the great twentieth century philosopher Woody Allen said "It is clear the future holds opportunities; it also holds pit falls. The trick will be to seize the opportunities, avoid the pit falls and get back home by 6:00 p.m." As for me, I think I hear the dinner bell ringing. They need some help with supper tonight, and I want to play with the kids after 6:00 p.m. before they grow up tomorrow. Got to go. Take care.

Haliburton goes all out to Welcome Santa!

WHAT A PARADE IT WAS! To the delight of the hundreds of people lining Haliburton's main street, the village's first Santa Claus certainly heralded the Christmas season with a colourful flourish.

More than 30 businesses and organizations took part, with approximately 10 times that number of people waving to the crowds from atop the brightly decorated floats. Streams of candy were tossed out to the waiting children, who must have thought it was Hallowe'en all over. Although with the number of children on the floats, it was surprising there were so many left to watch the parade!

"Outstanding," says Creighton Feir, who with Anne Bishop described the floats as they passed by the traffic lights. "When I looked down the street and saw the crowd, it was just a great feeling.

"It was the completion of a dream come true for a lot of people who have thought for a long time we should be having a Santa Claus parade."

The parade was the Haliburton Business Improvement Area's (BIA) way of getting everyone in the festive spirit. It corresponded with the three-day shopping spree, and included a visit with Santa, with the Rotary Club providing the candy, and free movies at the Molou Theatre. Parents could also take advantage of a $2 photo deal: Len Pizze took pictures of children on Santa's knee and Perfect Prints developed and framed them.

The judges' task wasn't easy when it came to determining the winners of the parade. Under Best Commercial Float, the winner of the CIBC plaque was Jasco Drug Mart. Sir Sam's Inn/Wind-sufinn came in second, with Dawson Insurance a popular third. In the Best Service Entry category, the winner of the Bank of Montreal plaque was St. George's Anglican Church's nativity scene. The CGIT came in second, followed by the Girl Guides, Sparks and Brownies in third place.

The smiles on everyone's faces proved that everyone was a winner.

NOTICE

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that the Township Council of the Municipality of Dysart et al proposes to enact at its regular meeting to be held on Monday, December 9, 1991 a By-Law to close, stop-up and convey part of the original shore road allowance in front of Lot 4, Concession X, in the Township of Dudley, in the County of Haliburton.

WHICH SAID parcel or tract of land is illustrated and shown as Parts 2 and 3 on a plan of survey by Greg Bishop, Ontario Land Surveyor, dated August 6, 1991, and available for inspection in the office of the Planning Administrator at the municipal office in Haliburton, Ontario. Part 3 on the plan is proposed to be conveyed to the Ministry of Natural Resources.

BEFORE passing the said By-law at its meeting to be held as noted above, the Council of the Municipality of Dysart et al shall then and there hear in person or by his counsel, solicitor or agent, any person who claims that his land will be affected by the said By-law and who applied to the Planning Administrator to be heard.

DISTURBING REFLECTIONS

Teenagers turn the mirror on themselves and their parents in high school play

by MARTHA PERKINS
Editor

WARNING: What you are about to read may shock a few parents. But perhaps for the first time, that's not this group of teenagers' intention. Instead, the shock tactics of The Mirror Game will be used to stir up teenagers themselves. In a very dramatic and realistic way, the play's cast and crew will bring their audience face to face with a very disturbing issue: physical and sexual violence among teenaged couples.

But parents will still squirm, especially since the mirror will be turned on them, forcing them to realize that how they treat their children is reflected in how their children treat their peers.

Take Luke, played by Matt Brydon in tonight's public presentation in Minden. He's grown up in a very violent home. His father is strict and everything has to be done his way; if not, he reverts to physical and mental punishment.

"He's on a total power trip," Matt says of Luke's resultant behaviour. "He's out to get everything his way. He beats up one girl and gives her a major guilt trip — 'If you leave me I'll kill myself.' He calls her a slut. He's really jealous and yet he tries to screw around with other girls."

One of those girls is Maggie. Like her mother, she's obsessed with her weight. "Chipmunk cheeks and thunder thighs — no wonder people don't look at me," she moans.

Maggie, played by Erin Lynch, has just given her lunch to Bob. She's got a crush on him but his eyes are on Sarah, the girl Luke is abusing. "I'd like to rip Luke's heart out," Bob (Lee Schellenberg) yells at Maggie during their lunch break. "Why would she want to be with someone like that? Do you think she likes it?"

Bob ends up eating Maggie's lunch and instead of thanks, he complains about the food. As Bob barks "Where's my lunch, spazz brain," Maggie is reduced to one-word answers, like the wife who always follows six feet behind. Meanwhile, in the background we hear the voice of Maggie's mother, complaining about her weight, cursing her looks.

Bob realizes he's being a jerk and leaves the scene. That's when Luke moves in on Maggie.

"I know what you two did," he taunts, "you know, you and Bob in the washroom." When Maggie asks him what he means, he sneers, "I was hoping you'd show me. I'd like to try it with you. It would be a quick one, no one would know."

Feeling threatened, Maggie backs away, but Luke grabs her menacingly, resisting her struggles. "Don't fight it, feel it," he says with revolting logic of the Queen's University students who fought back against the date rape campaign.

"It makes you wonder what's going on in people's minds, what's going on in their home lives," Ann Varty's drama students say of their reaction to The Mirror Game, which explores sexual and mental abuse.

Not quite your typical high school drama, but quite representative of what's happening in the hallways of the Haliburton Highlands Secondary School, although perhaps not to the same extreme, the students say.

Meet the morality play of the 1990s. At issue is not whether girls should "just say no" to a boy's advances, but the social conditioning which leads some of those boys to think they have the right to treat women any way they want to.

"It was funny at first. It just seems like reality," says Sean, one of Ann Varty's dramatic arts students working on Tuesday and Wednesday's production.

"Funny?" asks Angela incredulously. "I don't find abuse funny."

"The first time I read it I missed all the bad parts," says Doug. Erin agrees. "Once we started acting it out, we realized the impact of what was going on."

"Abuse is wrong, no matter whether you're male or female," Sean says to redeem himself.

"It makes you wonder what's going on in people's minds, what's going on in their home lives," says Lisa. "Probably a lot of students at the school are abused."

One of the students said "I don't think it's like that in school." "It depends on what their home life is like," says Lee. "If they're abused at home, they're going to take it out on someone at school."

One of his friends has been abused, and now hates his father. Lisa says that watching the play may help students who aren't getting tender loving care at home. "They might not think it's a sole problem of their own."

If people laugh during the play, she says "I'd be pissed off. I'd think they'd be awfully immature if they sat and laughed at it."

"Sometimes it's a nervous laugh because they don't know how to react," Erin says, to which Angela adds, "Maybe they feel uncomfortable so the only thing to do is laugh."

What would the students do if they saw someone treat his girlfriend the way Luke treats Sarah (who's played by Rebecca Felts.) Some say "I wouldn't say anything" but Lee is quite adamant. "In Haliburton, the way it is, if I see someone beating a woman I'd freak out myself. I've always been taught that you don't hit a girl."

Mrs. Varty's drama class (of mixed grades) is presenting Mirror Game tonight (Tuesday) at Archie Stouffer Elementary School in Minden at 7 p.m. On Wednesday, at 9:10 and 10:10, they will present it to the high school students.

The play was suggested by OPP Const. Mike Maybee, a member of the Haliburton County Committee Against the Abuse of Women. November is Break the Silence, Wife Assault Prevention month and the play highlights a social problem which can no longer be ignored by young or old alike.

Exclusive club honours its four centenarians

by NANCY KUZMICH
Staff Reporter

It's an exclusive club. Not just anyone can join. Most will never meet the strict requirements.

In this elite of elite clubs, you must be more than 100 years old!

This year, the Century Club at Highland Crest in Minden has four members. Lillian Curry, Isabella Eastman and Mary Oliver are all 102. Lucy Burgess just turned 100.

Mrs. Curry, who will be 103 on December 10, was married to Art Gillam, with whom she ran what is now Bank's Heritage Store in Haliburton. She later married W.R. Curry.

She was born in England and came to Canada as a child. When she and her first husband moved to Haliburton in the 1930s, she remembers receiving a cool reception from the locals because they were "city" people from Toronto. Nevertheless, the couple remained to become respected citizens in the community.

Mrs. Curry says one reason she might have lived so long is because she looked after her health.

"I didn't smoke or drink. I'd think to myself — isn't that disgusting to see a woman smoke?"

"My mother, who was Aunt Lil's sister, died at 52," says Mike Horner, Mrs. Curry's nephew. "It's strange how one sister can live to be double the other's age."

Mary Oliver came to Canada as an English war bride following World War 1. She lived on Hall's Lake until moving to Hyland Crest in 1980 and is Stanhope's oldest citizen.

"I think I've enjoyed a good, long life because of hard work and I was always looked after pretty good. And once a week I have some kind of a sweet!"

Lucy Burgess was born and lived most of her life in Neath, South Wales. She came to Canada in 1971 to be with her only child, Rev. John Burgess. At 90 years of age she became a Canadian citizen because this was now her home.

She says she's always kept a bit of South Wales in her heart, which has contributed to her good health.

Isabella Eastman was born in Fenelon Falls on September 9, 1889 and has lived in the area her entire life. Her six children and 15 great-grandchildren all live between Minden and Lindsay. Her secret for living long is a belief in God and the Bible.

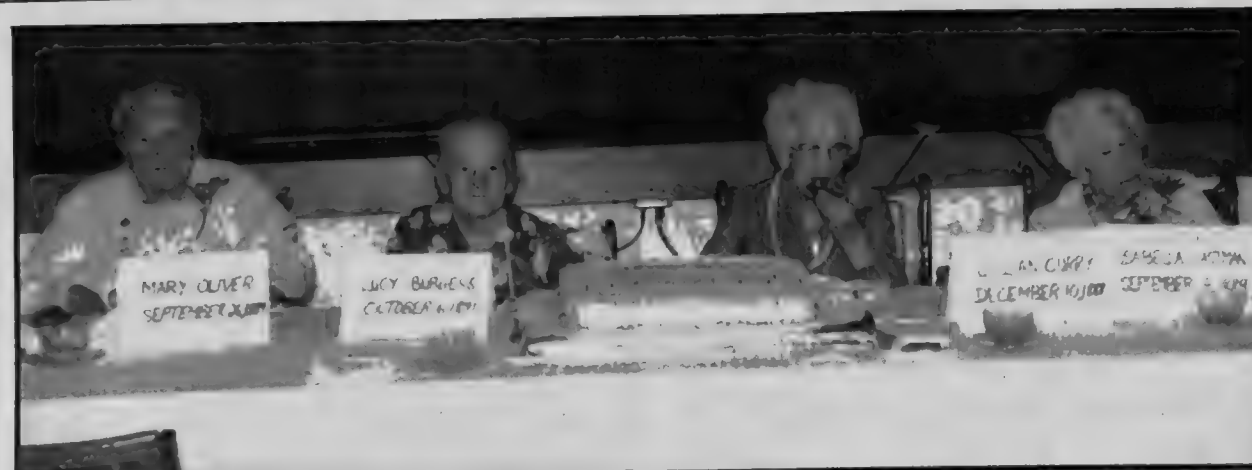

The women celebrated with a birthday party thrown for them last Thursday. Residents and staff extended warm congratulations while enjoying a big pink birthday cake.

"This party is extra special," says Doris Robertson, Activities Director.

Special guests included Anson, Hindon and Minden Reeve Bern Berry and a representative from Victoria-Haliburton MPP Dennis Drainville's office. Both presented plaques to the birthday girls on behalf of the municipal and provincial governments.

Dietary supervisor Llyn Shirley says she can't take all the credit for the ladies' longevity.

"Sure, nutrition is important. But I think it's the all-around good care the residents receive here at the home. It's everything...I think if people are happy, they live longer."

AN EXCLUSIVE CLUB: Very few people are privileged enough to become members of a Century Club. But at Hyland Crest, four women hold the honour: Mary Oliver, Lucy Burgess, Lillian Curry and Isabel Eastman.

Singing road tour is a real delight

SENIOR LEAGUE

by: WINNIFRED BARNUM

What a glorious day today is, Sunday, November 10. Sunday, November 3 chapel service was conducted by Rev. John Burgess, with Alice Jones kindly playing the organ.

Monday afternoon the Residents' Council was held. The attendance was very good and we were pleased to have our administrator present to announce a little of what we may expect to have happen in the near future, to improve our home.

Tuesday afternoon Doris Robertson took those who wished to, for a bus ride. We travelled down Hwy. 35, over 121 to Fenelon Falls and back to Kinmount and home, after stopping at Kawartha Dairy for our ice cream cones. Linda Fry played her guitar and she and Doris led the singing on the complete trip and Greg Sawyer. (Doris' helper on Activities) helped with the residents, adeptly.

Wednesday, November 6, after the hard work of many people, our Christmas Bazaar was held. The Hyland Crest Auxiliary managed the delicious tea and bake sale table, whose items disappeared like hot cakes). Hyland Crest residents had the Christmas gift displays and draw on the quilt. The winner of the quilt was Fern Greer of Bracebridge. The bazaar was the best for some time. Everyone was well pleased with the outcome.

Happy Hour was held Friday with Gordon Kidd supplying the music on a guitar. The volunteers were Don and Ellen Holden, Mary Guillemain, Bonnie Fullan and Janke Thomas.

Vicki's Water Babies came and provided Thursday tea party. It was delicious and was served by Dorothy Beggington, Irene Fuhr, Nancy Cook and Jeanette Bratton-Ellis. Nancy Gayton sang and played the piano during tea and Grace Coburn, Linda Fry and Dorothy Beddington accompanied Nancy with stinging. It was a happy afternoon.

Friday evening the Grandfathers were here to entertain us in the Trillium Lounge. Our hearty thank you to Bill Payne, Eldon Deacon and Don White.

We are very sorry to hear Gertrude McKay, Violet Thorne and Marshall Harrison are at present in hospital. Hope they are soon on the road to recovery.

Thanks to everyone who brightened our week.

Fines levied for shoreline work

A local contractor and property owner recently found that carrying out harmful work on waterfront property can be quite costly.

The Ministry of Natural Resources received a tip in August that a property owner on South Portage Lake in Dudley Township had been illegally placing fill on the lake bed.

An investigation found that over a number of years the owner had been placing tires, metal scrap and other debris into the lake and had recently covered over this debris with gravel, converting a portion of the lake bed to dry land.

The owner was charged for this illegal filling and was given authorization to remove the illegal fill material. In removing the fill, both the contractor and landowner failed to follow conditions that MNR had placed on the work to safeguard fishery habitat and water quality concerns.

Charges were laid against the contractor, James Reynolds Trucking Ltd., and landowner, John Sobolewski, for offenses under Ontario's Public Lands Act. Both parties appeared before His Worship D. Elliot at Ontario Court, Provincial Division in Minden on November 19th. The contractor was fined $2,000. In his sentencing statement, the presiding magistrate stressed that the days of carelessly working in the water with machinery are over and that others appearing in this court for like offenses would face similar fines. The landowner was fined $3,000.

It was noted by the court that this waterfront lot was of poor quality and that Mr. Sobolewski had carried out the illegal work in an effort to change the lot to one more suitable to his needs. The court stressed that alterations of this type that affect fish and wildlife habitats are no longer allowed.

This is the second case of this type in recent months that was investigated as a result of tips from the public. In October, a Minden area land development company, Lakeland Enterprises, was fined $2,000 for illegally filling shorelands on Brady Lake in Haliburton County.

IT WAS A MYSTERY worthy of the fertile imaginations of the teachers at Victoria Street School. One quiet Halloween day, just as the Grade 1 students had finished learning about bones, lo and behold, a pirate appeared before their very eyes. A real, live, swarthy pirate, with the crossbones stitched on his colourful clothes. This was no trick but would he have a treat?

With the flash of a hand and a "Arr, me maties," the pirate (who without all the fancy finery could have been Larry Van Lieshout's long lost twin brother) threw a bottle at the startled students and ran off into the stillness of the autumn mist.

Not knowing what to expect when a pirate visits your classroom and throws a bottle at you, the students gathered round teachers Wilma Powers and Toos Reid. What was the message inside the bottle? Can you believe it — the pirate has buried a treasure right here in Haliburton. "They went nuts," says Mrs. Powers.

Grade 1 students may not be able to read newspapers, but they can decode the alphabet, which held the clues to their search. Week by week, the plot thickened. One boy received a piece of the pirate's map in the mail and insisted his parents drive him to the school right away! The rest of the map gradually appeared, and do you know what it showed? A building with two Canadian flags in front. Where could it be?

Now it just so happened that the search for buried treasure took place at the same time the students were supposed to be learning about their community. Teachers know a perfect coincidence when they see one, so it was decided to search the town for more clues. Off they went, visiting businesses such as the drug store, where they got to go behind the counter to see the pills being counted, and to the butcher shop, where they saw how meat goes from a cow to the store shelf. At Parklane Apartments, some of them got to ride in an elevator for the first time. This is neat!

Events culminated with Thursday morning's visit to the high school, where the big students learn things by sitting at their desks.

"We're really glad you came to visit us," said principal Peter Forgrave. "Some time during the night, these footsteps appeared in the hall," he said, pointing to the pink, purple, yellow and green footsteps going in every direction. (Isn't it odd how the colours corresponded with the students' nametags?)

"It's the pirate," the students screamed in unison. The high school is not accustomed to such jubilation.

"We don't want any strange things in the school," said Mr. Forgrave, "so if you could help us out we'd appreciate it."

The Grade 1 students were up to the challenge. Off they went — and sometimes ran — with their high school drama student companions. The school would never be the same. Some of the footprints led right into the classrooms, and do you know what? The green students kept meeting the green pirate (and so on.)

Stranger things were to follow. The pink group was touring the technical room, searching high and low amid the lathes and presses for any clues. They just about walked right by their biggest find — a box full of sawdust with a rock on top. A rock? Wasn't there a line which went something like P-Q-RST, Under the rock you'll find the key.

Please turn to page 20

Screams greet opening of hidden treasure chest

The students started digging. First they found bags of jelly beans — JELLY BEANS! — and then, yes you're right, it's a key! "A key, my own key!" the discoverer squealed.

But where was the treasure? The search continued. Finally they all gathered in the library. "Are you a real pirate?" a young student asked an older student who looked awfully like a Captain Blythe is supposed to look. (One fortunate outcome of the treasure search was that Abby-Blythe Hagerman learned how to spell the second half of her first name.) The groups which had yet to find a key miraculously found keys hidden in books, and then sat down to listen to the pirate read them a pirate story. With all the excitement, the cookies were a welcome energy booster too.

Since they were out for a ride, the students decided to keep on going to the Haliburton Highlands Museum. Wait a minute! Doesn't this look a lot like the building in the map? Yes, it does, but look, the observant students noted — on the map there are two Canadian flags flying; at the museum, there's one Canadian flag and one flag of Ontario. "Oh Mrs. Powers, he probably just forgot," one student said. (Later, another student surmised that museum curator Tom Ballantine switched flags on them as a trick.)

"Brodie, come here! Spiked hair!" yelled one boy to a friend as he looked at the stuffed hooded merganser in the display case. Downstairs, Steve Hill was showing them The Echo's old printing press and weighing them on the scale that used to be in Bank's Store. "You weigh about 60 pounds — I don't know what that is in kilometres," he told a boy. "There's an old-fashioned butterfly," a little girl exclaimed at another exhibit.

When everyone had explored the museum's three buildings, they gathered upstairs. "Pirates are really sneaky. They could have snuck in when we weren't looking," said museum assistant Patty Parkinson. So the four quietest students took one last look. Loren Dart yelped. She had found it, she had found the treasure chest. The children SCREAMED with excitement. (The museum will never be the same either.)

"I know you're excited but we do have manners to remember," Mrs. Powers said with that cool voice of authority. The students made a big circle with the chest in the middle. Where are the four keys? The four discoverers stood up, but judging from the size of the lock, the students knew who had the right key. No, not Loren. No, not Joann. No, not Joel. Jason, Jason had the right key!

Let us just say that what followed next was pandemonium. One little girl got frightened and started to cry. The others crowded in on the open treasure chest, the glint of gold dazzling them into forgetting all signs of restraint. Students! Students! The teachers had to restore order, and in a surprisingly short time, considering all that treasure waiting to be divvied up, they did.

Should we give the coin-shaped chocolates to Mrs. Reid's class and Mrs. Powers' class will keep the books, Mrs. Power asked. No, the children yelled. Dianne Hagerman, a volunteer mom, tried to convince them that volunteer moms should get all the treasure, but the students wouldn't buy that either. (Mrs. Hagerman can remember the one year when the treasure was pencils. There wasn't much excitement then. Teachers can learn too.)

"We should give every one one chocolate and if there's enough to go around, may we could give them another one," Joann suggested. What a good idea. One by one, the students politely picked up their chocolate and headed back onto the bus.

"The thinking skills that come out of this are really incredible," Mrs. Powers said later. "There was excitement, but more than that the wheels were turning. You could see them figuring things out. They get to learn so much through it."

Isn't that another happy coincidence?

And what would you like for Christmas. While his elves keep busy at the North Pole, Santa was in Haliburton Saturday at the request of the Rotary Club, asking boys and girls what visions of toys were dancing in their heads.

Information Centre

The first annual statements of registered retirement savings plan "contribution room" — will be mailed to taxpayers between November 25 and December 13.

The annual statements have been made necessary by major changes in Canada's retirement savings system, effective January 1, that are intended to equalize the tax support provided to pension and RRSP's. Anyone without pensions are allowed to contribute (and deduct) $11,500 for 1991. Calculating the amount of RRSP contribution room for those belonging to pensions or deferred profit sharing plans is now so complex that Revenue Canada will do the calculations and send Canadians the annual statement.

You have until March 1, 1992 to make RRSP contributions for deduction when filing the 1991 tax return.

Further information is available by calling Revenue Canada toll-free at 1-800-267-8030.

COMMUNITY NEWS

Residents tune into a worthwhile cause

WILBERFORCE NEWS

by: WINNIE SCHOFIELD

Good news bears repeating. Report on the generous actions of Don Fevreau were overlooked in our recent news. Don Fevreau, who operates the Montage Real Estate business, was able in just three months to raise the sum of $3,128.24. The money came from residents of Harcourt Park, members of the Loop organization, the Monmouth Firemen and many other residents. With these donations television sets were purchased for the use of patients in the Haliburton hospital. We salute Don Fevreau for this worthy achievement.

Senior citizens hosted an evening of Euchre on Nov. 15. Warren Bowen, who promoted the occasion, was pleased with the attendance. Eleven tables of players enjoyed the evening. Lunch was served later. Irwin Bowen and Don Ferrier won the men's high with Edna Tighe winner for the ladies. Roy Cann and Ida Holmes finished with the lowest hands. Norma Walsh had the most lone hands. We hear that an order for Red Cross wool has just arrived. Now they need knitters to put everything together. Anyone willing to knit for the Red Cross please contact Hilda Clark.

The arena is alive with energy. Hockey and figure skating are once again enjoyed by the brave souls who withstand the lure of Florida's balmy weather. The Old Timers take over every Thursday evening when teams from Bancroft, Apsley, Cardiff, Haliburton and Wilberforce compete.

Minor hockey games are held Saturday afternoons and Tri County teams play Saturday and Sunday nights. For those who just love to skate there is free admission on Sunday from 12 to 2 and Friday evenings 6:30 to 8 p.m.

Those industrious folks in Highland Grove are presenting a craft show on Nov. 30 at the Community Centre from 10 to 3 p.m. Proceeds from the bake sale go toward the Community Centre upkeep. There may still be tables available at this time; contact Beatrice Hughey at 448-2597. Residents ran a shop through the summer months. It is closed for the winter and articles left over will be on display at the craft show.

At the Legion Hall there is a small game draw and dance to be held Nov. 30 at 8 p.m. A big event to follow is the wild life dinner on Dec. 7. Tickets for dinner are $10. each and may be purchased at the Legion Hall prior to that day.

Minden W.I has decorations demonstration

Fourteen members and two guests of Minden Women's Institute met at the Common Room on Nov. 20th with the president in the chair. She thanked all for their help in the past month. The meeting went on with the usual reports and business. Report was given by Irene Moore of 11 cards sent for a variety of occasions and collections for these and Pennies for Friendship were taken. The Area Convention Report was given by Jean Lacey, and expenses for this are to be paid.

After some discussion members are asked to place any donations for Christmas Boxes in various stores as they purchase them or make them.

Carol Miles was introduced as Curator of County Town Museum. Elizabeth Carrell then gave us a great demonstration of Christmas decoration using dried flowers, cones, seeds, etc. A gift was presented to her and all gave her our thanks.

Maude Coulter gave her usual amusing reading for our entertainment. The meeting then adjourned and auctioneer Irene Moore disposed of items from the Roll Call.

We then enjoyed snacks and cup of tea and chat with friends. The next meeting is our Christmas Party on Dec. 18th at the Minden United Church Hall at 2 with exchange of gifts. Bring a guest and any other ladies are welcome.

IN MEMORIAM

HUGHES, SHIRLEY — In loving memory of our dear mother and grandma, Shirley who passed away Nov. 27, 1990. No farewells were ever spoken. No time to say goodbye. You were gone before I knew it. Only God alone knows why. My heart still weeps with sadness. Secret tears will always flow. For what it meant to lose you. No one will ever know. Each time I see your photo, You seem to smile and say. Don't cry I'm only sleeping. We'll meet again some day. Sadly missed and loved always. Joanne, Kirk, Kevin & Janine Harrison.

32-P-26

HUGHES, SHIRLEY — In loving memory of a dear wife, mother, grandmother Shirley who passed away November 27, 1990. We have not lost the one we love. She is only gone before. Where there is everlasting life. Where sorrow is no more. And there her soul will always live. And peace is everywhere. We did not lose the one we love. God has her in his care. Always remembered by husband Wren and Family.
